BAPTISTS CONFRONT REFUGEE CRISIS AT GREEK BORDER

By SETH BROWN | BR Content Editor

"Europe faces an imminent humanitarian crisis," warned the United Nations High Commissioner for refugees (UNHCR) in a March 1 report that focused on the rapid build-up of migrants in Eidomeni, Greece. A team of North Carolina Baptists recently volunteered at the border crossing to the former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia, where they aided desperate migrants and shared a message of hope.

Alisha Houston launched the idea of mobilizing a team after hearing one of her husband's sermons at Beach Road Baptist Church in Southport, N.C. She felt compelled by God to serve Middle Eastern refugees amid the crisis that has dominated the lives of millions.

"It is overwhelming how many people are being affected ... so many young families just trying to get to safety and make a better life for themselves," she said. "They are broken and we have the very thing that can give them hope and a future."

The team's primary job was to help a local, non-governmental aid organization (NGO) relay important information and resources to incoming refugees.

They offered basic guidance in the Eido-meni camp, including directions to food, bathrooms, clothing and doctors. The team also supplied practical items like plastic handbags and helped prepare food for distribution.

"We helped them achieve the second highest production day," she said, "we packed over 2,500 boxes of fresh pasta."

Houston especially enjoyed keeping a small stash of treats on hand for young migrants.

"The children were all smiles when you give them candy. Just looking at them and smiling makes them light up," she added. "They seem happy that someone is paying attention to them."

Recent UNHCR estimates show more than 2,000 refugees arrive daily on the shores of Greece, totaling more than 1 million since January 2015. People from Syria, Afghanistan, Iraq and Iran make up 94 percent of asylum seekers coming into Greece by sea, according to the latest figures.

They take the short but dangerous voyage across the Aegean Sea in inflatable dinghies or larger boats with no crew. The cold, unforgiving waters have claimed 410 lives in 2016, said UNHCR reports.

J.D. Greear to be SBC president nominee

By DAVID ROACH | Baptist Press

North Carolina pastor J.D. Greear will be nominated for president of the Southern Baptist Convention (SBC), Florida pastor Jimmy Scroggins announced March 2.

Greear, 42, “is leading his generation to live out a passion for the SBC, missions and the local church,” Scroggins, pastor of Family Church in West Palm Beach, Fla., wrote in a news release stating his intention to nominate Greear at the SBC annual meeting in June.

During the 14 years Greear has pastored The Summit Church in Raleigh-Durham, N.C., worship attendance has grown from 350 to just under 10,000, Scroggins said. Total baptisms increased from 19 in 2002 to 928 in 2014, the last year for which statistics are available through the SBC’s Annual Church Profile (ACP).

Scroggins said the 149 International Mission Board (IMB) missionaries currently on the field from The Summit mark the largest total from any church in the convention – a statistic the church told Baptist Press (BP) the IMB has confirmed. Greear himself served two years with the IMB among a Muslim unreached people group before being called to The Summit.

Closer to home, The Summit has planted 26 churches in North America during the past five years in conjunction with the North American Mission Board.

Another key emphasis at The Summit is diversity, Scroggins said, with nearly 20 percent of worship attendees in English services coming from non-Anglo ethnic groups. One of the congregation’s nine campuses is Spanish-speaking, and one is located in a prison, the church said. “Nearly half” of the pastoral staff is non-Anglo, Scroggins said.

“Believing J.D. Greear is God’s man for the hour who models in his church the best of what a Southern Baptist pastor is all about,” Scroggins wrote, “I eagerly look forward to placing his name in nomination.”

In his release, Scroggins said the church “voted last year to give $390,000 to the Cooperative Program (CP) in 2016, making it one of the top CP giving churches in the state of North Carolina and the SBC.” He noted this marks a 230 percent increase in The Summit’s CP giving.

Three years ago, the congregation voted to increase its giving through the Cooperative Program over a five-year period to 2.4 percent of undesignated receipts, the church confirmed to BP. The Summit reached its goal two years early.

As of Jan. 1, The Summit began forwarding all its CP giving through the Baptist State Convention of North Carolina (BSC), the church said. Previously, it forwarded some funds it regarded as CP gifts directly through the SBC Executive Committee for distribution according to the CP allocation formula. In 2013-14, for instance, it gave $96,000 directly to the EC, according to the 2015 SBC Annual. The BSC reported CP receipts of $54,000 from The Summit in calendar year 2014. Adding the two numbers together yields the $150,000 the church self-reported as “CP giving” on its 2014 ACP – a total amounting to 1 percent of undesignated receipts.

The Summit’s Great Commission Giving “has been at or around 10 percent for the last several years,” Scroggins wrote. Great Commission Giving is a category of giving established by SBC action in 2011 that encompasses giving through CP, Southern Baptists’ unified program of funding state- and SBC-level ministries, as well as direct gifts to SBC entities, associational giving and giving to state convention ministries.

According to ACP data, The Summit’s Great Commission Giving was 13 percent of undesignated receipts in 2014, 12 percent in 2013 and 15 percent in 2012.

The Summit’s Great Commission Giving includes more than $1 million annually to IMB-related causes and more than $500,000 to NAMB-related causes, the church told BP. The Summit additionally is in the process of funding an endowed chair at Southeastern Baptist Theological Seminary (SEBTS) to the total of $500,000.

Greear told BP, “One of the things God has put on my heart is that my generation needs to take personal responsibility for the agencies and the mission boards of the SBC and not just think of them as the SBC’s, but think of them as ours.”

He continued, “The second thing I want to do is celebrate the autonomy of the local church in choosing how it’s going to give. We want to see CP giving elevated, and we are doing that ... but we also want to see Great Commission Giving celebrated, because that’s part of the autonomy of the local church. Ideally, I want to see churches do what we are doing, which is give more sacrificially to the CP but then have the autonomy to direct [their] gifts to Great Commission Giving and have that not only be legitimate but celebrated.”

Greear emphasized that “missions is more effective when done in cooperation with like-minded churches, and we feel really good about the [entities] of the Southern Baptist Convention and how they’re leading.”

Greear’s nomination is the first to be announced for the June 14-15 annual meeting in St. Louis.

He is married to Veronica and has four children. Greear holds master of divinity and doctor of philosophy degrees from SEBTS. BR

Registration open for SBC St. Louis

Baptist Press

Registration for the Southern Baptist Convention’s (SBC) “Awaken America: Reach the World” annual meeting, June 14-15 in St. Louis, has opened.

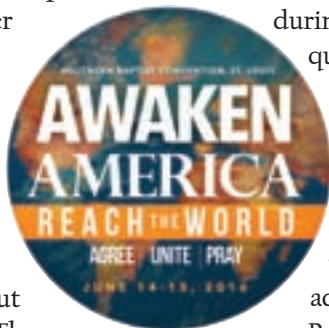

Through online messenger registration at the SBCAnnualMeeting.net tab, each messenger will receive an eight-digit registration code to present at the annual meeting’s Express Registration lane in St. Louis, preferably as a printout for the church’s credential. The code will be entered into a computer at the SBC registration area and a nametag will be printed. The appropriate church-authorized representative must complete all online registrations.

The SBC constitution and bylaws were amended last year to broaden messenger representation. Each cooperating church that contributes to convention causes during the preceding fiscal year qualifies for two messengers.

Additionally, the convention will recognize 10 additional messengers from a cooperating church. Check with the SBC to find out what qualifies the church for additional messengers.

Registration information for preschool children and programs for children ages 6-12 and students in grades 7-12 also is available. BR

A WORD FROM OUR LEADER

Baptists on Mission: A testimony of God's goodness for 40 years

The year of 2016 holds a special significance in North Carolina Baptist life – it is the 40th year anniversary of N.C. Baptist Men, also known as Baptists on Mission. I reflect on all that Baptists on Mission has accomplished for our Lord Jesus, and I praise His name – what a testimony to the goodness of our God!

Baptists on Mission is an auxiliary of the Baptist State Convention of North Carolina and is itself composed of 17 different ministries. Each year, thousands of men, women and students are directly involved in mission projects locally, nationally and internationally through these different ministries.

One of the most visible ministries of Baptists on Missions involves disaster relief, which allows those who serve to share the love and message of Christ by helping meet the physical, emotional and spiritual needs of those impacted by catastrophe. Baptists on Mission also support various mission projects and partners across our state, nation and world.

I believe, as does Richard Brunson, executive director of Baptists on Mission, that all Christians are called, gifted and sent to do God's work. The great variety that exists within these 17 different ministries allows for a greater number of God's people to use their specific gifting for His glory. Whatever the area of a person's involvement in ministry, God has specially equipped each one of us with spiritual gifts, and He will carry out the good work that He began in each of us “until the day of Christ Jesus” (Philippians 1:6).

MILTON A. HOLLIFIELD JR.

As Baptists on Mission celebrates its 40th anniversary this year, I hope that you will join me at the 2016 Baptist Missions Conference, an event hosted by Baptists on Mission on April 15-16 at Hickory Grove Baptist Church in Charlotte. The conference's theme is “Rescued and Redeemed” and will feature breakout sessions, mission fair exhibits, a volunteer supper and missions testimonies. This year's speakers will include Bob Goff, author of the book Love Does; Gary Chapman, author of The Five Love Languages series; Bryan Loritts, pastor at Trinity Grace Church in New York City; and Rebekah Lyons, author of Freefall to Fly: A Breathtaking Journey Toward a Life of Meaning.

Whether or not you are able to attend the conference, please join me in giving thanks to the Lord for all of the many ways that He has allowed Baptists on Mission to bless others through service. I pray that you will ask the Lord to show you how He might use you for His glory – according to the gifts that He has given you and the places to which He has called you.

“He saved them from the hand of him who hated them, and redeemed them from the hand of the enemy” – Psalm 106:10.

The presidential election: things to keep in mind

Baptist Press

During this pivotal year of electing the next president of the United States, we need to be wise with our words and actions.

These are serious times. Much passion is rising in America during this season. It is in the air. We sense it, feel it and know it in our heart. Much is at stake. This is undeniable.

Yet, it would be well for each of us to remember these five things during the election season:

1. Keep everything in perspective.

God is sovereign over all human affairs. Regardless of who wins the nomination of your preferred party or who wins the election, God is ultimately in charge.

I am not advocating passivism. I am calling for each of us to keep everything in perspective. Our hope and trust is ultimately in the Lord.

2. Be involved in the process.

Each Christ-follower needs to be involved in the processes of electing our next president. We need to know about the candidates, understand what they believe, measure it by the Word of God, and vote as we believe God is leading us. We need to vote not only in the general election, but also in the primary of our choice.

It is incumbent upon us to be involved in the process at whatever level afforded to us. If you get a chance to meet one or more of the candidates, meet them. If you get a chance to speak into their lives and platform, step up and represent the Lord and His Word honorably. If you are never afforded this privilege, learn what you can by listening, watching and reading.

I say it again; it is incumbent upon us to be involved in the process of electing our next president. Quite honestly, America cannot afford for us to stay at home.

3. Watch what you say and how you say it.

Passion is rising over these matters. In our respective places and positions, each of us will be asked our opinions. Therefore, we need to be deliberate in what we say and how we say it.

People are watching and listening to us. We represent our Lord everywhere, so we need to live up to this wisely. This does not keep us from providing insights and speaking up when appropriate, but it does call us to weigh every word we say and the way we say it.

Do not lose your testimony and influence with others for the sake of pontificating, as if you are trying to win an argument or promote your preferred persuasion. This is difficult for each of us, but we must be wise with our words and gentle in our spirit.

In our congregations, we have people from all backgrounds with all kinds of opinions.

This should not call us to silence or intimidate us into fearfulness. Yet, it does call us to be wise with our words and clear in every way, exhibiting at all times the spirit of Christ.

4. Refuse to be categorized.

Election season usually pushes us into categories and labels. It is now more than obvious by what we read that even evangelicals are broken into various categories. These categories are labeling different groups and how they will vote with different candidates.

I hope each of us will strive not to be categorized by anyone.

We are one thing ultimately: followers of Jesus Christ. This is our badge of honor. If we abandon this by our actions or opinions, we will begin to lose our prophetic voice during this critical hour in America.

5. Pray for God to raise up His next leader for our nation.

Daniel 2:21 says, “He changes times and seasons; he deposes kings and raises up others. He gives wisdom to the wise and knowledge to the discerning” (NIV). God does have a will for our nation and He has the power to raise up whomever He desires to lead our nation.

As followers of Christ, while we work in the processes afforded us as Americans, we need to also pray for God to raise up His next leader for our nation. May He raise up such a leader where His mercy will extend toward us. And, regardless of this leader, I pray for the mercy of the Lord to be upon us.

When we know we have worked in the processes and prayed for the Lord's will to be done, when all is concluded, we have the peace to trust the Lord who is sovereign over all affairs.

Finally, let's pray for one another to remember these five things during the presidential election season.

Anne Graham Lotz shares difference prayer makes

By HARPER MCKAY | SEBTS

Anne Graham Lotz encouraged listeners at Southeastern Baptist Theological Seminary (SEBTS) to be like Daniel who was compelled to pray, centered in prayer and persistent in his petitions.

Southeastern hosted “An Evening with Anne,” featuring Lotz, renowned author and speaker and daughter of Billy Graham.

More than 900 guests attended the Feb. 25 event.

To open the evening, Lotz expressed thanks to everyone who has supported her family since the passing of her late husband, Danny Lotz.

“I know many of you have been praying for me and my family,” she told the crowd at the seminary’s Binkley Chapel in Wake Forest, N.C.

“The Lord has heard your prayers, and we are doing so well.”

Lotz also gave an update on her father saying that at age 97 he is doing well and is stronger than he has been in some time.

Speaking from Daniel 9, Lotz posed a question, “What can one person do when we’re faced with a mess or a disaster?”

“Our world is in a mess,” Lotz said. “My challenge to you tonight is ... wrap your mind around your sphere of influence – your family, your church, your nation ... and [say] God I will not let you go until you bless those who are in my circle.”

Lotz outlined a pattern of prayer exemplified in the life of Daniel, specifically in chapter nine when Daniel pled to the Lord to deliver His people.

Like Daniel, Christians should pray the promises of God back to the Lord. “Daniel was compelled by the promises in God’s Word,” she said.

“So I don’t know what the problems are in your world, but whatever they are would you ask God to give you the promise to match it and then pray those to Him?”

Lotz explained how Daniel centered on God in his prayers, turning from everything else to focus on God. We likewise, she said, should put everything else aside and get in our quiet places to petition the Lord in prayer.

Daniel also prayed for forgiveness of the sins of Judah in a very unique way, she said.

“He was so identifying with the sins of his people that he took them upon himself,” Lotz said.

“He stopped pointing the finger at them. He stopped blaming others, and he took on the sin of his people as though it were his own.”

Lotz said Christians today should keep short accounts of their own sins, confessing every day, and stop seeing “others” as the problem in this world.

“The basic problem in Judah was sin,” she said.

“And in America the basic problem in our nation is not political, not immigration. The basic problem in America is sin.”

In closing, Lotz urged listeners to continue in prayer until an answer comes.

“My challenge to you this evening is, what difference does the prayer of one person make,” she said.

“You’re not going to know until you choose to be that one person. Would you pray until God delivers His people and takes them home?”

Lotz, president of AnGeL ministries (annegrahamlotz.org), spoke on material from her newest book, The Daniel Prayer, which will be released in May. She was invited to speak at the end of the Seminary Women’s Network (SWN), an annual meeting between the wives of the six Southern Baptist Convention (SBC) seminaries and other women leaders at SBC entities.

Dorothy Patterson of Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary said the women get updates on what is happening with women’s ministry at each of the seminaries and learn of new resources to use to facilitate ministry. The SWN meeting rotates each year to a different seminary.

“They are asking us to do a pretty big job in training women,” Patterson said.

God speaking

Anne Graham Lotz talked about the importance of reading God’s Word. During the first eight days of August, Lotz is planning to emphasize God speaking (Godspeaking.com). She encourages everyone to listen to an hour of scripture each of those eight days.

“It’s not a large group but it’s a wonderful, intimate fellowship because many of us – while our works and our maybe spheres are somewhat different – we all have a similar passion and call, so there’s quite a strong sisterhood,” Kelley said.

While the women meet together on a small scale for most of their time, the goal each event is to have a broader event, like having Anne Graham Lotz share.

Denise O’Donoghue, SEBTS assistant professor of ministry to women, said all the pieces fell in place for the event to take place.

“We’re great friends, and the Lord has just given us an incredible bond because of our relations to each other and our work with the SBC,” she said.

Charlotte council passes LGBT ordinance; state may overrule

By EMILY BLAKE | BR staff writer

After voting down a highly controversial sexual orientation and gender identity (SOGI) ordinance last March, the Charlotte City Council voted again Feb. 22 to pass a similar measure that will require places of “public accommodation” to abide by a non-discrimination policy that includes “marital status, familial status, sexual orientation, gender identity and gender expression.”

Opponents say the ordinance allows sexual predators to visit the bathrooms or locker rooms of their choice, endangering women and children.

The controversial decision ended with a 7-4 vote in favor of the ordinance. Council Members Ed Driggs, Claire Fallon, Greg Phipps and Kenny Smith opposed the legislation.

According to the North Carolina Values Coalition, more than 700 protesters crowded outside the Charlotte-Mecklenburg Government Complex Building for two hours leading up to the vote despite pouring rain.

“We, in Charlotte, are united together as citizens, faith leaders, business owners, mothers and fathers, to let you know that your voice will not be the last one Around 700 protesters gathered Feb. 22 to encourage the Charlotte City Council to vote against a measure allowing men to go into women's restrooms and vice versa. standing,” said Mark Harris, senior pastor of First Baptist Church in Charlotte. “You have received nearly 250,000 emails urging you to vote ‘no’ to allowing men to enter women’s bathrooms and locker rooms. Should you choose to ignore this resounding voice of the people by passing this extreme ordinance, it is not us that will lose today ... it will be the women and children of this city that you have willingly and knowingly placed in harm’s way. We will not stop until they are protected and safe once more.”

The #DontDoItCharlotte coalition rally, which was organized by the N.C. Values Coalition, featured community, business and faith leaders urging Mayor Roberts and the Charlotte City Council to vote no.

Coalition spokeswoman Kami Mueller expressed thanks to the council members who opposed the measure, saying they “took the outcry of over 250,000 emails from concerned citizens seriously,” and they “should be applauded.”

She continued, “The seven others who voted yes to this ordinance did so because they valued their own extreme agenda over protecting women and children in Charlotte. This is both shameful and extremely sad. Charlotte deserves better.”

Gov. Pat McCrory indicated in an email to The Charlotte Observer that swift action by state legislators is expected to overturn the local ordinance. The outcome of the controversial issue may also be decided by N.C. voters in the form of a referendum.

Tami Fitzgerald, executive director of the North Carolina Values Coalition, said in a press release, “Every citizen of North Carolina should thank Gov. McCrory for taking a strong stand against the Charlotte City Council’s pending unconstitutional transgender bathroom and LGBT favorability ordinance.

“The ordinance will set up legal discrimination, allow men to enter women’s bathrooms and locker rooms as they wish, and violate the freedom of Charlotteans to live and work in accordance with their beliefs.”

Aaron and Melissa Klein, owners of Sweet Cakes by Melissa in Gresham, Ore., are an example of how such ordinances can negatively affect Christian business owners, suppliers, employees and the general public. Allan Blume, editor of the Biblical Recorder, interviewed the couple at a recent event.

“It’s going to put Christians out of the marketplace,” said Aaron Klein. It’s a consequence of gender and sexuality related ordinances that they experienced first-hand. The couple declined to bake a cake for a lesbian wedding last year, sparking a legal campaign against them. On July 2, 2015, Oregon Labor Commissioner Brad Avakian ordered the Kleins to pay $135,000 in emotional damages to the lesbian couple they declined to serve.

“As Christians, we need to be motivated to get more involved in the political process,” said Klein, “not so much for people like me who have already been forced to pay $135,000 – but for those who will not be able to stand up under the pressure. ... We need to stand up for those who won’t be able to survive the harassment campaigns of the LGBT movement in the future.”

The Charlotte City Council held a five-hour long meeting in March 2015 that media reports said was one of the most contentious in years. Hundreds of concerned citizens gathered at the Charlotte-Mecklenburg Government Building to express their support or opposition to the proposed SOGI ordinance.

With more than 100 people speaking at the meeting, each for two minutes, and more than 40,000 emails sent to the City Council concerning the proposal, the first push for the ordinance failed by a 6-5 vote.

Charlotte’s newly elected mayor, Jennifer Roberts, had promised to make the ordinance a top priority for 2016.

SOGI activists successfully lobbied the Greensboro City Council to pass an ordinance in January, and now again in Charlotte.

Bikers support Baptist Children's Homes

BSC Communications

The Baptist State Convention of North Carolina (BSC) Convention Relations Office is sponsoring the first annual Ride to Clyde motorcycle charity ride to support the Baptist Children's Homes of North Carolina (BCH).

The ride will take place over three days in May. Riders will gather Wednesday evening, May 4, at the North Carolina Baptist Assembly at Fort Caswell and head west from there. The ride will be completed Saturday morning, May 7, when the group reaches BCH's Broyhill Home campus in Clyde, N.C.

Along the way, riders will visit Cameron Boys Camp and the Mills Home Campus while enjoying the scenic byways of North Carolina.

Brian Davis, associate executive director-treasurer for the BSC, says, "The Ride to Clyde will be a great opportunity for those who love riding to not only enjoy the back roads of our state, but to see and hear the testimonies of lives that are changed by the gospel through the ministry of BCH."

"I'm not only looking forward to the ride, but to the fellowship and the opportunity to share my faith in Christ with those who will join us."

Rit Varriale, senior pastor of Elizabeth Baptist Church in Shelby, is also joining the ride. Varriale believes this event not only has the potential to raise much-needed support for BCH, but also to introduce riders to BCH ministries.

"We will only get to visit three of the 20 children's homes campuses across the state, but after this trip, riders will have a much better understanding of the unique ministries of the children's homes.

"We hope that they will become ambassadors for the children's homes in their churches."

Varriale is also excited about the opportunities that a multi-day event provides for riders who are Christians to interact with riders who are not Christians. Having participated in other multi-day charity rides, Varriale says the opportunities for disciple-making abound.

"We want riders who are Christians to bring their friends who are not believers along," he said. "As we share meals, take rest stops and unwind at the end of each day's ride, we'll have opportunities to share the gospel."

The full itinerary for the ride, as well as registration and fund-raising information, may be found at <http://bit.ly/1Sm53ld>.

The Ride to Clyde is also open to those who can only join the group for a portion of the route. Information for day riders may also be found on this same webpage.

Riders may also contact Cynthia King at (800) 395-5102 or via email at cking@ncbaptist.org. BR

Committee extends deadline for recommendations

BSC Communications

North Carolina Baptists still have time to submit recommendations for individuals to serve on the Baptist State Convention of North Carolina's (BSC) Board of Directors, committees and boards on institutions and agencies.

The Committee on Nominations has extended its deadline for submitting these recommendations to April 14. More information about the nomination process is available online at ncbaptist.org/recommend, where you may make a recommendation or download copies of the recommendation form.

The committee welcomes recommendations that represent the diversity among all North Carolina Baptists. Nominees will be chosen from churches of varying sizes and from a wide range of professional and educational backgrounds.

The convention's bylaws state that it is desirable for the Committee on Nominations to nominate at least 25 percent of the board and committee members from churches with a membership of fewer than 400. The bylaws also limit churches to no more than six individuals from a single church serving on all convention boards and committees, and they limit BSC Board of Director membership to one member from any church.

An individual may only serve on a single committee or a single board at one time so that a larger number of North Carolina Baptists can engage in the work of the convention. Contact Cynthia King at (800) 395-5102, ext. 5501, or cking@ncbaptist.org. BR

San Diego church aims to be Catalyst for neighborhood

By JIM BURTON | NAMB

At age 16 Manny Sanchez tagged along with his family to an Amway Convention. They were independent business owners with the mega network marketing company that sells soap, vitamins, makeup and other products.

On Saturday, someone announced there would be an optional Sunday morning session. Sanchez, who was born in Mexico, went to what turned out to be a worship service. “The guy preached an evangelistic message,” Sanchez said. “I went forward and got saved. My heart really did change.”

Sanchez’s salvation happened in a vacuum. He had no Christian orientation and didn’t know what to do next.

Common teenage rebellion followed, and he engaged in blatant sinful activity.

After a serious traffic accident became his wake-up call, his two sisters, 10 and 11 years older, stepped into his life. One of them enrolled him in a Christian school in Santa Maria, Calif.

“That became my season of discipleship,” Sanchez said. “I started growing in Christ.”

He gave up the party life, drugs and other non-edifying habits and behaviors. Following high school, Sanchez attended a Christian college in San Diego. He spent several years as a youth pastor at several churches before joining the senior staff at Shadow Mountain Community Church, pastored by David Jeremiah. While there, he completed seminary masters studies.

“Our church became Southern Baptist, and that just opened up the door for me,” Sanchez said of his journey toward church planting.

Having grown up in Los Angeles and attended college in San Diego, Sanchez feels comfortable in the Southern California culture. Through research, he learned that San Diego is the eighth largest unchurched city in America. “San Diego is beautiful 350 days out of the year, and there is so much to do here,” Sanchez said. “The culture of San Diego is entertainment and to enjoy life. For some reason, church isn’t on that list for most people.”

With his wife, Jennifer, their four children and a core group from Shadow Mountain, Sanchez turned his attention to planting Catalyst Church in downtown San Diego – a place that has seen an estimated 10 church plants start and fail in the last five years.

“Our goal was to focus just on that one-mile radius of the 25,000 people who live in the heart of downtown,” Sanchez said of a city with very few evangelical churches. “We started the church with 18 people at our preview, then the second month we had 42. The third month we lost 11 couples. It’s like trying to keep a leaky bucket filled.”

Eventually, Sanchez wants Catalyst Church to have a storefront presence that is at the hub of downtown. The goal is for Catalyst to be “large enough to dare, small enough to care.”

He also wants to reproduce and develop a “well-oiled church-apprenticeship program.” The establishment of Catalyst Church would not have happened without the Annie Armstrong Easter Offering® and the Cooperative Program. In their first year, Catalyst Church had 40 professions of faith and 20 baptisms. “It feels like God is at the center of this and we’re along for the ride,” Sanchez said.

One Day seeks to help churches create disciple-making culture

by Emily Rojas

1 DAY

EQUIPPING LEADERS TO MAKE DISCIPLES

God calls people out of the world, grows them in His image and sends them back into the world to demonstrate that the best life is one that is lived God’s way.

This pattern is demonstrated throughout the Bible with both the Old Testament people of God and the New Testament church.

Cris Alley, who serves the Baptist State Convention of North Carolina (BSC) as the strategy coordinator for the Triangle region, will address these themes and how they impact modern-day disciple-making at two upcoming training events for church leaders – One Day East and One Day West.

“At the One Day conferences in April and August, we will explore how to create a disciple-making culture in your church,” Alley said.

One Day will provide training and equipping for pastors, church staff and lay leaders who serve in virtually any ministry in the local church. The events will be offered in two locations to make it easier for more churches and leaders to take advantage of the training being offered.

One Day East is scheduled for Sat., April 9 at Temple Baptist Church in New Bern. One Day West is scheduled for Sat., Aug. 20 at Western Avenue Baptist Church in Statesville.

Each conference will include a keynote presentation by Alley as well as numerous equipping sessions covering a variety of local church ministries.

Individuals can attend the trainings for as little as $15 per person, if registration is completed by the respective early-bird deadlines. Early-bird registration for One Day East closes Fri., March 25.

Registration includes the equipping sessions, conference materials and lunch. Churches can also receive one complimentary registration for every 10 leaders who register from a single congregation.

One Day East
Saturday, April 9
8:30 a.m. to 4 p.m.
Temple Baptist Church,
New Bern

One Day West
Saturday, Aug. 20
8:30 a.m. to 4 p.m.
Western Avenue Baptist Church,
Statesville

Registration information, including pricing, deadlines and a complete list of equipping sessions is available at onedaync.org.

Neal Eller, BSC team leader for church strengthening who is organizing both One Day events, said the goal of the conferences is to help everyone who serves in local church ministry – pastors and members alike – to understand and live out their role as disciple-makers in obedience to the Great Commission.

“I want people to understand what their responsibility is in disciple-making and how that can impact lostness,” Eller said.

“Whatever a person’s role is and whatever their ministry is, they have been called to their role for a reason, and they can make an impact for Christ.

“As people follow Christ and become more like Him and begin to make disciples in their everyday lives, they replicate His method of discipleship.”

Consultants from the BSC’s evangelism and discipleship group will lead equipping sessions in ministry tracks for Sunday School, small groups, children’s and youth ministry, worship and music, women’s ministry, evangelism, special needs ministry, pastoral leadership and more. A Hispanic track is also available.

A sampling of equipping session topics include: conversational evangelism, relational disciple-making, next steps for discipling new believers, how to create a disciple-making culture, and many, many more. A complete list of equipping sessions is available at onedaync.org.

“All of the sessions – whether they address children’s ministry, small groups or pastoral leadership – are going to be focused on making disciples,” Eller said. “Both One Day East and One Day West seek to support churches in their efforts to create a disciple-making culture that impacts lostness in our state.”

Young Women's Event ncbaptist.org/alltogether

Women have played an important role in the life of the Church since the very beginning. From Mary, the mother of Jesus, to Phoebe, who was highly regarded by Paul, women have always been a vital part of God's composition of the ministries of His Church.

On April 22-23 at Life Community Church in Greensboro, Embrace and Women's Evangelism and Discipleship will host "All Together," an event for young women ages 18-35.

The event will be a time of studying scripture and helping young women discover their role in ministry and in their churches, using the gifts and talents that God has given them to bring glory to His name.

Erin Davis, founder of Graffiti Ministries and popular speaker, author and blogger, will be the main speaker at this event. She believes every Christian is a necessary part of the Body of Christ.

"We can't afford for anyone to sit (on) the bench, especially a group as passionate, talented and faithful as the young women I know," Davis said. "We need all believers to contribute to the God-ordained ministry of the local church, including young women."

Ashley Seagle of the band "Cover the Earth" will be leading worship. There will also be a coffeehouse gathering Friday night.

The cost of registration is $60, and the registration deadline is April 8. Details are available at ncbaptist.org/alltogether. Young women are encouraged to treat this event as a retreat and come in groups.

For more information, please contact Ellen Holder at embracenc@ncbaptist.org or (800) 395-5102, ext. 5561.

Spiritual Leadership Equipping Tracks

On Thurs., April 21, the Baptist State Convention of North Carolina (BSC) will host a spiritual leadership training session on "Emotionally Healthy Leaders."

It is not possible to be spiritually mature while remaining emotionally immature. This training will help a leader learn the biblical principles of what it means to have Christ transform the emotional aspect of who you are.

The event will focus on building church leaders and integrating practical tools and skills. The session will highlight the four key leadership components to making disciples: character, capacity, context and competency.

The cost for the training is $25. Certification training is also available on Fri., April 22 for an additional $70.

More information and online registration is available at ncbaptist.org/leadershipdev, or contact Ken Tan at ktan@ncbaptist.org or (800) 395-5102, ext. 5641.

We Still Do Pastor & Wife Getaway

"We Still Do," a pastor and wife getaway, will be held May 5-7 at Caraway Conference Center. Eddie and Janet Thompson, who have led marriage enrichment conferences and retreats since 1992, will be leading this getaway.

This special retreat will allow couples to strengthen their marriages by giving them time to worship, learn, talk, think and pray together – focusing on the fact that discipleship and marriage go hand in hand. The conference will feature group sessions, and special worship with Russell and Kristi Johnson.

The cost is $99 per couple for first-time attendees and includes lodging and meals. Space is limited to 30 couples, so sign up today. For more information, contact Eddie Thompson at ethompson@ncbaptist.org or (800) 395-5102, ext. 5644.

Refugee

Numerous migrants said they risk the mortal hazard because there is no other option. War and terrorism have created unlivable conditions in their home countries.

“They live [in Iran] with no hope,” said *Amir, an Iranian college student. Fighting back tears, he continued, “It was so hard living there.”

Another refugee told aid workers he would rather die in the ocean than return home.

Devastated by violence

Syria’s economic collapse drove *Khalil and his wife out of the country in search of a new life. Unsure of the danger awaiting them, the couple decided to leave their two children with extended family until they find a safer place to settle in Europe.

Holding pictures of the young boy and girl, Khalil said in broken English, “I very sad, very sad. Sometimes I cry.”

The family endured the early years of Syria’s civil war, hoping for a peaceful resolution. They resisted leaving despite the apparent danger, due to close family ties and careers. But the fighting became chaotic, and they could no longer tell who was attacking whom.

It was too dangerous, Khalil said. So they decided to leave.

Conflict has spread beyond Syria as governments, rebel groups and terrorist organizations clamor for territory and power.

The Islamic State (or Daesh) and an al-Qaeda affiliate, called the al-Nusra Front, wreak havoc on fragile cease-fire agreements, fueling suspicion and spawning additional terrorist groups, according to news reports.

“It’s been five years – a war in my country,” said Khalil. “Now we leave Syria because we look for a new life, a future.”

An NGO leader said he was recently overcome by emotion when a young boy, after seeing an aircraft fly over the Eidomeni refugee camp, asked whether or not it would unleash explosives on them.

“It is so overwhelming to know that this is reality for people here,” he said.

Driven by fear

*Hassan, a construction worker from Baghdad, fled Iraq because terrorists threatened to destroy his family.

His oldest son is a popular Arabic singer in Turkey. After winning a well-known television singing competition, the son shared prize money with the family. When the Iraqi Daesh learned of the financial gift, they began making grave threats. For them, Hassan said, to be rich is considered “haram” (sinful).

The young man must stop singing or be killed, the terrorists warned. When Hassan refused to forbid his son’s career, the Iraqi Daesh kidnapped one of his other sons. Terrorists sent Hassan a video threatening to kill the teenage boy unless he paid a six-digit ransom.

Hassan secured the child’s safety and fled the country immediately.

Distressed by uncertainty

Many refugees feel safe once they land on European shores, because they’ve escaped territories gripped by jihadists and shelled by warring armies, but additional troubles often await.

Instigated by European Union political tensions, arbitrary Macedonian border closings and immigrant flow restrictions cause Greek refugee camps to overflow, leaving people without adequate shelter or food.

The initial border camp in Eidomeni was built to hold approximately 2,000 people. The UNHCR estimated between 8,000-12,000 people were gathered near the border March 7. Nearly 60 percent are women and children. Many contract illnesses due to exposure and malnutrition.

The Greek government is making efforts to manage the flow of people and construct long-term solutions, but it cannot keep pace with the current influx. Officials recently announced plans to use docked passenger ferries as temporary housing, according to the UNHCR.

Strategies to build more “hot spots” on the mainland continue, but the country is limited by economic austerity measures and a lack of manpower.

The political uncertainty that surrounds the European refugee crisis keeps many refugees in a constant state of distress. With a despairing look, Khalil said, “I don’t know if many people love us. ... What can [we] do?”

Until a permanent resettling solution is reached, aid volunteers continue to serve those caught between violent turmoil in the Middle East and political upheaval in Europe.

Drawn by hope

James Zik, associate pastor of Beach Road Baptist Church, was among the volunteers drawn to the refugee camp in Eidomeni by a sense of urgency. His Christian convictions compelled him to offer hope to migrants in seemingly hopeless situations.

“James, you have no idea what it’s like to live under a dictator,” said *Amal, whose home in Damascus was destroyed. “Where is God right now?”

Zik replied, “You’re right. I have no idea what it’s like ... but I can tell you this is not the world God created. It’s broken and tainted by sin.”

He continued, “The hope we have is in Christ. ... All the brokenness you see on the planet will one day be restored.”

March 15 marks the five-year anniversary of the Syrian conflict. Many Christians are drawing attention to the date, calling for people around the world to pray, serve and give for the sake of displaced peoples scattered across the globe.

The Baptist State Convention of North Carolina’s Office of Great Commission Partnerships is actively pursuing ways to mobilize N.C. Baptists to engage people along the migrant pathway from Turkey to Germany. The International Mission Board (IMB) and the Ethics and Religious Liberty Commission have partnered with other organizations in an initiative called Pray for Refugees (#prayforrefugees). IMB has also deployed field personnel to help develop a unified strategy for serving migrants. Baptist Global Response, a Southern Baptist relief and development organization, provides avenues for volunteering and donating at their website, gobgr.org. Zik said to anyone considering ways to help refugees, “Don’t hesitate. Just go. Sign up yesterday and get over there.”

IMB releases ‘reset’ results, looks to future

Baptist Press

“IMB is now in a much healthier financial position,” IMB President David Platt tells trustees Feb. 24 during their plenary session. “Due to increased giving from Southern Baptist churches, Cooperative Program and Lottie Moon Christmas Offering giving are trending upward.” (IMB photo by Lexie Bennett)

The International Mission Board (IMB) announced Feb. 24 that 983 missionaries and 149 stateside staff have transitioned outside the mission entity during the past six months as a result of its voluntary retirement and resignation programs.

IMB President David Platt told trustees the organization now expects to operate a balanced budget for 2017 due to its 2015-16 organizational “reset” processes and the generosity of Southern Baptists who have given sacrificially.

“IMB is now in a much healthier financial position,” Platt said during IMB’s Feb. 22-24 trustee meeting near Richmond, Va.

“Due to increased giving from Southern Baptist churches, Cooperative Program and Lottie Moon Christmas Offering giving are trending upward.”

The number of missionaries on the international field is now around 3,800, according to IMB figures. The last time the number of missionaries was below 4,000, according to SBC Annual reports, was in 1993 at 3,954.

Frank S. Page, president of the SBC Executive Committee, said, “My heart is broken to hear of the large number of missionaries and staff who are leaving the IMB. My prayers are with them as they transition.

“However most of all,” Page noted, “My prayers are focused on the fact of the massive lostness in our world. May God bless Dr. Platt as he leads us in a new strategy to see a new day of intentional evangelism around our world. God help us all!”

Platt held a live stream question-and-answer video session March 3 to discuss the future of the organization. “I really want to shift the conversation from talking about numbers and finances to talking about how this army of brothers and sisters going out specifically from Southern Baptist churches across North America can make the gospel known among the nations,” Platt told an online audience that included viewers on more than 1,000 electronic devices.

He acknowledged “there has been and continues to be in the IMB family ... and the broader SBC family a kind of grieving process” associated with seeing hundreds of missionaries and stateside staff shift to other ministry fields. Southern Baptists are “continually wrestling through” implications of that transition even as they focus on fulfilling the Great Commission going forward.

Platt listed five “primary desires” that drive the IMB in its ongoing work:

- A desire to exalt Christ
- A desire to mobilize ordinary Christians
- A desire to serve and equip local churches
- A desire to facilitate church planting
- A desire for the 46,000-plus Southern Baptist churches to each play their part in accomplishing the Great Commission.

The SBC’s program of international missions, Platt said, can be envisioned as a “three-legged stool” whose legs represent missionaries, local churches and the IMB. Local churches send and continually encourage missionaries while the IMB leads those missionaries to play specific roles in a coordinated global strategy to evangelize the world’s 6,000 unreached people groups. BR

‘Reveal’ encourages life-on-life discipleship

By CHAD AUSTIN | BSC Communications

When Dhati Lewis felt called to the ministry, he didn’t sense a call just to preach the gospel. He sensed a call to make disciples.

“Disciple-making is not a ministry of the local church,” said Lewis, who serves as lead pastor of Blueprint Church in Atlanta, Ga. “It is the ministry of the local church.”

Lewis shared how he lives out that calling to a group of 350 pastors and church leaders on Monday, Feb. 29 at Lawndale Baptist Church in Greensboro, N.C., as part of the Baptist State Convention of North Carolina’s 2016 disciple-making conference.

The theme of the conference was “Reveal: Share your life. Speak the gospel.” The theme is based on 1 Thessalonians 2:8 in which the Apostle Paul wrote, “we were delighted to share with you not only the gospel of God but our lives as well.”

Lewis was one of several speakers at the event who shared biblical and practical ways to build genuine relationships that point others to Christ and help them grow in their faith.

Speaking from Matthew 9:35-38, Lewis challenged attendees to recommit themselves to reaching their neighbors for Christ.

“(Jesus) says the harvest is plentiful,” Lewis said. “The problem is that the laborers are few. The problem is that too many of us as believers have reduced Christianity to conferences, concerts and church services. Now all the laborers are clustered together.”

Lewis added that too many believers have become “addicted to our comfort,” and reaching our neighbors will require us to get outside of those comfort zones.

“We need to really think through, ‘How do we reach our neighbors?’” Lewis explained.

“I think the first thing God is saying (in this passage) is that we need to pray that God would force us out.”

Lewis said reaching our neighbors means we must take time to get to know them and get involved in their lives. Lewis called this “the ministry of presence,” adding that we must rediscover the principle of life-on-life discipleship.

“We have reduced life-on-life disciple-making to a once a week meeting at Starbucks where I’m going to ask you about your life,” Lewis said.

Lewis is so committed to life-on-life disciple-making that he and his wife, Angie, invite six to eight single adults to live with them in their home for several months. Lewis and his family model for those individuals how to study and apply the Bible as they live life together.

The principle of life-on-life disciple-making is foundational to Blueprint Church. So much so that half of Blueprint’s members have someone living in their homes that they are discipling, Lewis said.

“Living in close proximity forces you to deal with the truths of scripture in real life,” Lewis said.

Lewis’ message resonated with Jeff Holder, pastor of Society Baptist Church in Statesville.

As Holder heard Lewis describe how he discipled individuals who live in his home, Holder said he was reminded of an individual in his community who is doing the same for someone else. Holder said he plans to talk to wife about inviting a young man from his church to live with them for a period of time.

“Discipleship does involve this idea of ministry presence and life-on-life presence,” Holder said.

Chuck Lawless, professor and dean of graduate studies at Southeastern Baptist Theological Seminary in Wake Forest, opened the day by speaking on disciple-making and spiritual warfare. He reminded attendees that it is God who fights our battles for us.

“God leads us into impossible battles so He might be our warrior and the nations might know His name,” Lawless said as he walked through several passages of scripture to illustrate that truth and how it relates to disciple-making.

In examining the life of David, Lawless noted that the shepherd boy trusted in the Lord’s strength and power to deliver him against the giant Goliath. When he later became king, David would frequently depend upon his own abilities, Lawless said.

David’s example has direct application in disciple-making. “If we’re not careful, we will train people out of dependence upon God,” Lawless said.

In disciple-making relationships, Lawless challenged the audience to ask themselves this question: “Are you David the king or David the shepherd boy? Where are you really?”

“The best disciple-makers are shepherd boys and shepherd girls who teach others to be the same.”

Bruce Frank, pastor of Biltmore Baptist Church near Asheville, concluded the day with a special word for pastors. Frank encouraged pastors to model the type of disciple-making that they want to see from their congregation.

“If you’re a pastor, you’ve got to put huge importance on the quality of model that you are,” Frank said.

Frank reiterated the conference’s theme about the importance of building relationships that can serve as platforms to share the gospel and make disciples. While acknowledging that it’s easy to be critical of lost people and their lifestyles, Frank encouraged attendees to intentionally pray for and seek out friendships with the lost.

“They are not the enemy,” Frank said. “They are the mission field.” B3

Longtime SBTS preaching professor dies at 93

(SBTS) James William Cox, a renowned homiletics professor who taught at The Southern Baptist Theological Seminary (SBTS) for more than four decades, died Feb. 21 in Louisville, Ky., at 93.

Born in 1923, Cox trained generations of pastors and wrote several books on preaching. He joined the faculty in 1959 as professor of Christian preaching and in 1981 became the first occupant of the Victor and Louise Lester Chair of Christian Preaching. He retired in 1993 and served as a senior professor until his death.

Cox earned both his M.Div. (1947) and his Ph.D. (1953) at SBTS. He graduated with his bachelor's from Carson-Newman College (1944).

Cox is survived by his wife of 64 years, Patricia Parrent Cox; two sons, David and Kenneth; and four grandchildren.

FCA founder Don McClanen leaves legacy

(Baptist Press) Don McClanen, who founded Fellowship of Christian Athletes (FCA) in 1954 after enlisting the support of several Christians in sports, died Feb. 16 at age 91. FCA is a worldwide ministry headquartered in Kansas City, Mo., with 1,200 staff members who use athletics as a means of reaching the world with the gospel of Jesus Christ.

McClanen's vision for FCA began when he was a student manager for the men's basketball team at Oklahoma A&M College (now Oklahoma State) after serving in World War II. McClanen became a high school basketball coach and then basketball coach and athletic director at Eastern Oklahoma A&M. He is survived by his wife Gloria and son Michael.

Our Need for Protection

Focal Passage: John 10:7-15, 27-30

As the presidential primaries unfold, one of the issues that candidates must address is that of national security. Of course, discussions about safety and security take many forms: personal security, securing the borders, school security and even church security. When we hear such a discussion, we are reminded of our vulnerability. Rather than recoil at that thought, we ought to use it as a reminder of our need for our Good Shepherd.

In John 10, Jesus continues to reveal himself as the great "I Am." In verses 10-11 he uses two "I Am" statements as he reveals more about who He is for us. In verse 7 He declares Himself "the gate for the sheep." Fencing has historically been a way in which shepherds protected their flocks from predators. In any fence, the gate is critical. It is the most obvious point where one can enter, if the gate is not secure. Jesus declares that He is that gate for us. Nothing can get to you without going through Jesus first. What a blessed thought!

In verse 11 Jesus continues by declaring Himself to be the Good Shepherd. While the gate is a static means of defense, the shepherd is dynamic. That is, the shepherd can respond to the needs of the sheep and move swiftly in their defense. The sheep and their shepherd have an intimate relationship. The sheep know the voice of their shepherd and listen to it (John 10:27).

More than that, the shepherd has an interest in his sheep that a "hired hand" does not (John 10:12-13).

But, Jesus' protection of his sheep is not ultimately about national borders or even personal safety. Jesus offers us eternal protection from the Enemy, who only desires to steal, kill and destroy (v. 10). When Jesus says that He lays down His life for the sheep (vv. 11, 15), He is referring to His death on the cross. It is by His death that provides eternal protection to all those who believe in Him (v. 28). Praise God for our Good Shepherd.

Baptist Church, Wilson

Focal Passage: John 11:17-27

Though there is debate about the origin of the phrase, the idea that "death is the great equalizer" has been present in literature for at least two hundred years. Death eventually comes to all of us. As I heard an old preacher once say, "we are all born terminal." Those facts do not change the suddenness of loss or the emptiness felt by those who are left to mourn.

Mary, Martha and their brother Lazarus were dear friends of our Lord Jesus. This small family hosted Jesus in their home when He passed through their region. They loved Jesus and believed in Him. So much so that they sent for Jesus as Lazarus was sick and near death. But, death came for Lazarus before Jesus arrived. His death was a painful loss.

But, his death was not final. In fact, his death served a greater, kingdom purpose. Jesus tells Martha that Lazarus will rise again. She assumes he is speaking eschatologically and affirms her believe that, yes, someday, Lazarus will rise in the resurrection to come at the last day (John 11:23-24). But, that is not the extent of Jesus' meaning. In fact, it is in correcting Martha's misunderstanding that Jesus issues one of the more famous "I Am" statements: "I am the resurrection and the life" (v. 25).

Martha had misunderstood Jesus to be thinking about the future. But, Jesus was not limiting His power to raise the dead to some future event. Rather, Jesus makes clear that those who believe in Him have eternal life in the present.

When we place our faith and trust in Jesus our spiritually dead nature is brought to life by the Holy Spirit (Ephesians 2:1-5, Romans 8:11). That Spirit filled life is not bound by the constraints of this world, but lasts forever. When Jesus tells Martha that He is the resurrection and the life, He is saying that He not only provides the means by which the dead are raised, but that He possesses the life to which they are raised. A life that is as eternal as He is. What a blessed comfort!

Unified

Focal Passage: Acts 2:41-47

Many things in life are greater than the sum of their parts. When the squares of a quilt are sewn together they create something far more beautiful than a collection of pieces of cloth.

They combine their individual worth to form both an extraordinary work of art and a useful tool for staying warm on a cold night. In a far more significant way, the local church brings together people with a wide variety of gifts, ages and experiences to produce more for the glory of God than they ever could separately.

Unfortunately, most local churches advertise themselves according to their programs and properties. While the world may be impressed by these largely material characteristics, every true church demonstrates what God has done without a single program or property. He has taken a motley crew of sinners, who would never unify in the flesh, and made the one by the blood of Jesus.

The Day of Pentecost yielded 3,000 new believers who displayed their acceptance of the gospel by submitting to public believer's baptism.

Unlike the false professors of modern easy believe-ism, these new Christians wanted more than meaningless membership and a passing fling with faith. They understood that the church consisted of people, not property. Consequently, they wanted to live the Christian life with each other throughout the week and not just on Sunday.

They worshipped, observed the Lord's Supper and ate together. Their transformed hearts were seen most clearly in their willingness to sell their property and possessions to help each other.

As a spiritual body, they functioned like the human body and depended on the presence and purpose of each member for the proper functioning of the body (1 Corinthians 12:12-26).

As the church continually displayed the power of the gospel, God added people daily to the church. Although no one is saved by merely watching the church, the church's activity can attract people to or repel them from the gospel. Are we trying to attract them with the world's tools or a demonstration of the Spirit's saving and unifying power?

TROY RUST
Pastor, Florence Avenue
Baptist Church, Oxford

Focal Passage: Luke 24:1-12

A few years ago I was going through the familiar process of making a gallon of iced tea, when something went terribly wrong.

I boiled the tea, measured and poured the sugar, and filled the pitcher with water. As I prepared to place the freshly brewed beverage in the refrigerator, I discovered my mistake. I forgot the tea!

In all my tea related activity, I had made a gallon of sugar water. Despite my good intentions, the finished product didn't even resemble tea.

A similar, but far more tragic, deletion occurs in an ever-widening stream of mainline congregations. In the name of political correctness and human reasoning, many churches fill the traditional church container with spiritual sugar water devoid of the primary content – the resurrected Jesus. These churches still talk about the resurrection of Jesus, but, as Jerry Vines has stated, they use our vocabulary but not our dictionary.

They redefine the resurrection with metaphorical meanings like "Jesus rising in our hearts," choosing the disastrous conclusions of naturalism over faith in a Savior who died and rose again.

First-century Christians never would have risked their lives for a weak religious philosophy.

They took up their crosses daily because they believed Jesus had fulfilled the promises of God. They could not lower the priority of the death, burial and bodily resurrection of Jesus (1 Corinthians 15:3-4), so how can we? Only this finished work of Christ secures our victory over death and power for new life.

Although we believe these key doctrines, we are in constant danger of shelving them and creating dead orthodoxy.

Even if we've heard the gospel a million times, we must stand before the empty tomb in awe, just like the eyewitnesses that first Easter morning.

We must demonstrate faith that sees the resurrection as more than a past historical event.

We must show and tell the world that through Jesus' resurrection we have been raised to "walk in newness of life" (Romans 6:4).

If we focus on the pitcher, we'll soon forget the tea.

2015 MISSIONS SUPPORT by NC Baptist Churches

Just prior to the 2014 Annual Meeting of the Baptist State Convention of North Carolina, convention leadership published a list of missions support of the more than 4,300 churches of the convention in a special section of the Biblical Recorder. The positive response from readers was overwhelming, so we are excited to provide that information again for the 2015 calendar year. We do so with a deep sense of gratitude for the sacrifices made by churches and individuals to cooperatively support the ministries of our mission organizations.

God has been faithful in many ways during these transition times at the convention and in our national missions organizations, and we recognize that our churches have been the instruments of His provision. We also received some great suggestions regarding how we categorize the churches in relation to their missions giving. We have come to realize that resident membership is often a very poor indicator of the actual number of North Carolina Baptists supporting a local church. So this year we are highlighting the top churches in Cooperative Program support by average worship attendance, as reported by the churches in the Annual Church Profile or through direct confirmation. Those listings are found below.

Please understand there is always the possibility of error when reporting so many statistics. The convention has taken great care to ensure that the numbers reported accurately represent the contributions received by our accounting team from Jan. 1-Dec. 31, 2015. These contributions do not include other designated gifts for our affiliated institutions and agencies, auxiliary (N.C. Baptist Men) or other ministries such as world hunger and disaster relief.
