SEBTS' LINK

CONFERENCE

TO FOSTER

MULTICULTURAL MINISTRY

BR staff

Southeastern Baptist Theological Seminary's (SEBTS) Office of Kingdom Diversity is hosting a one-day event April 13 on its campus in Wake Forest, N.C., to offer training for current and future Christian leaders interested in developing ethnically diverse ministry teams.

The Link Conference will address practical issues organizations face as they diversify, such as assessing multicultural leadership readiness, preparing for cultural change, avoiding tokenism, applying best practices for kingdom ministry and understanding the struggles of minority leaders.

The idea for the inaugural event came in response to numerous calls and emails to the Office of Kingdom Diversity from churches requesting training.

Walter Strickland, SEBTS associate vice president of Kingdom Diversity Initiatives (KDI) and first vice president of the Southern Baptist Convention, said he receives up to 10 requests per week from Southern Baptist congregations and other organizations seeking help in developing multicultural ministry teams.

Strickland discussed his excitement for the apparent interest in racial harmony on a recent episode of the podcast hosted the Kingdom Diversity office, called "From the Lectern."

"I think that is the hand of God working in the

'INAPPROPRIATE

By ART TOALSTON | Baptist Press

In a statement that recast an earlier retirement announcement, Frank S. Page has resigned as president and chief executive officer of the Southern Baptist Convention's (SBC) Executive Committee (EC), effective March 27 over what is described as a "morally inappropriate relationship in the recent past."

An initial Baptist Press news story reported his retirement, which included comments by Page that he would be making the transition to spend more time with family. He received an outpouring of tributes and compliments on social media from Southern Baptists for his tenure in the SBC leadership role.

Page later admitted that he made the announcement "without a complete explanation."

Stephen Rummage, Florida pastor and EC chairman, released a 300-word statement on behalf of the EC's officers noting the circumstances of Page's resignation: "Last evening, the officers of the Southern Baptist Convention Executive Committee met via phone conference with Dr. Frank Page during which he announced his plans for retirement. Today, I spoke with Dr. Page and learned that his retirement announcement was precipitated by a morally inappropriate relationship in the recent past."

The exact nature and duration of that relationship is unclear at this time.

"This news will, we understand, bring great sorrow" Rummage said.

"I have shared with the Executive Committee officers what Dr. Page shared with me, including Dr. Page's repentance and deep regret that his actions have caused pain for others.

"My heart is broken for Dr. Page, his family and everyone affected. I believe I speak for the entire Executive Committee in saying that we are committed to provide them the spiritual and emotional support they need in the coming days. We also recognize the stewardship we owe Southern Baptists and the watching world to communicate with truth and candor and to honor the Lord in our actions and decisions.

"I call upon all Southern Baptists to pray for everyone involved in a situation like this, and especially for Dr. and Mrs. Page. Please pray for the Southern Baptist Convention and all that is entrusted to the Executive Committee.

"As officers, we are committed to provide leadership that the Southern Baptist Convention will recognize and trust.

"To those ends, in keeping with our Executive Committee bylaws, we will be working on a plan to provide for interim transition in the wake of Dr. Page's immediate

The 2017 CP report: For celebration and accountability

BR Editorial Staff

The Cooperative Program (CP) is the financial core of Southern Baptist missions and ministries. Local churches throughout North Carolina have voluntarily participated in the CP since its inception nearly 100 years ago. In fact, our network of more than 4,300 churches has often set the standard of generous missions giving for Southern Baptists across the nation.

The Biblical Recorder editorial staff is proud to celebrate your record of CP support by publishing the 2017 Missions Support report, found in the second section of this issue. You will find information there for each cooperating Baptist church in the state, including its giving, other missions support and associational affiliation.

These records, which have been provided to us by the Baptist State Convention of North Carolina, begin with a breakdown of the top CP-giving churches in the state, grouped by attendance. We commend all congregations who choose to give faithfully through the unified giving plan, regardless of the amount.

The annual publication of this list also serves a more solemn, journalistic purpose.

A recent article by The Pathway, news journal for Missouri Baptists, detailed how a church treasurer was arrested on federal charges for embezzling hundreds of thousands of dollars, following a two-year investigation that began with the publication of the annual giving report in the state newspaper.

Some church members noticed that giving records did not match the published report. Many of the stolen funds had been designated as missions offerings and payments to the pastor's retirement account.

The tragic story is not the first of its kind, nor will it be the last. The records found in this issue are accountability tools to help protect your church's integrity.

We always pray that no congregation's tithes and offerings would ever be pilfered, but if misconduct has taken place, we hope this report can help you discover the truth.

Christ's people hold fast that, "Love... does not rejoice at wrongdoing, but rejoices with the truth" (1 Corinthians 13:4-7).

To that end, we have also included a list of seven steps that pastors and other church leaders can take if they encounter non-standard financial practices in a church. The following is a section from a blog post written by William Thornton for SBCVoices.com, used by permission.

1. Take time to learn how things work. Who collects, counts and deposits the offering? Who writes and signs checks? Who receives the bank statements? Who has access to financial records? If the same person does all this, someone needs to bring the subject up and work to correct it.

2. Compare records sent by your state convention or GuideStone Financial Resources to what is reported. Any pastor with a GuideStone account receives regular reports of his account showing what has been deposited. He should check to see if what GuideStone shows matches what the church report shows. State conventions send summary statements of what is received from a church. These often reveal a problem if one exists. If the sums do not match, then questions should be asked and the matter corrected. It may be a mistake. Or it may indicate theft.

The Cooperative Program (CP) is Southern Baptists' unified plan of giving through which cooperating Southern Baptist churches give a percentage of their undesignated receipts in support of their respective state convention and the Southern Baptist Convention missions and ministries. The CP was launched in 1925.

3. See if there are informed laypeople in the church with whom you can have private discussions. I understand the sensitivity of raising these questions. It's perfectly natural for a new pastor to ask questions and familiarize himself with his new church. If the sensitivity level seems too elevated over the matter, find a trusted layperson with whom you can have confidential conversations.

4. Pushback may indicate a problem.

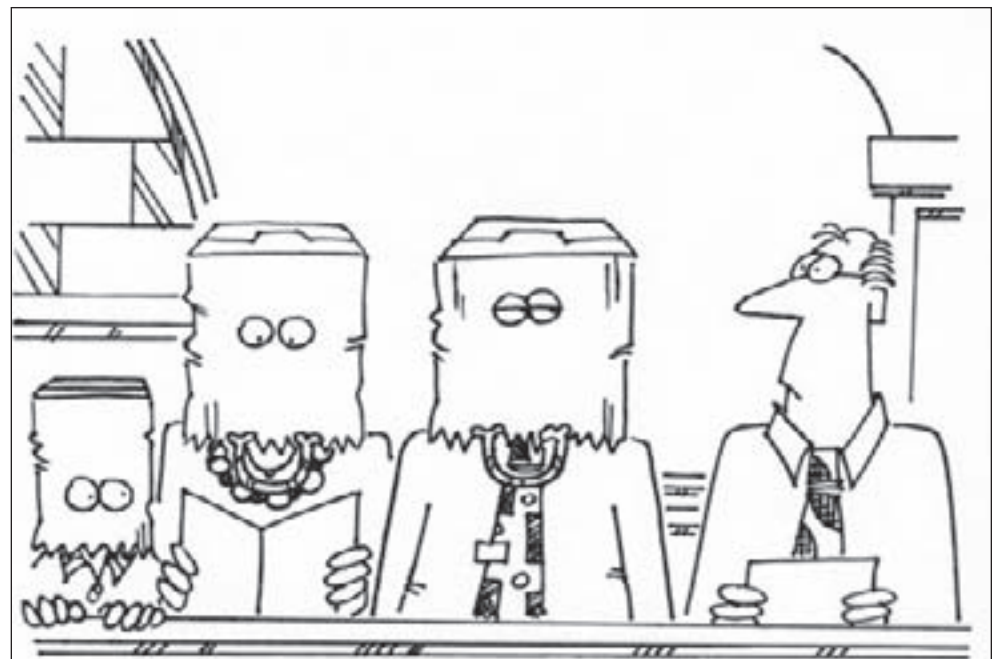

Resistance to even modest changes in money handling may be a sign of trouble. Someone should see it through, and seek out the truth.

5. Involve non-church people. Associations and state conventions regularly have conferences and training on handling church funds. Ask the treasurer or some church leaders to attend. The conference leaders will say what needs to be said and almost certainly share a couple of church embezzlement stories. Your church folks will pay attention.

6. It is good practice to divide these tasks and have an annual financial review. This protects those who handle money, as well as the church, and increases confidence in church leadership that donations are managed properly.

7. If you hit a brick wall, try to find a way around it. The church treasurer is a main source of irritation in many churches. Chances are the pastor is not the only person in the church who doesn't like the present arrangement.

IN FOCUS

A WORD FROM OUR LEADER

Southern Baptists: Together on God's Mission

Late last year, I was asked to write an endorsement for a new book on the history of the Southern Baptist Convention (SBC) that focuses on how we as a denomination adopted and embraced a cooperative approach to missions that we know as the Cooperative Program.

That book, Together on God's Mission: How Southern Baptists Cooperate to Fulfill the Great Commission, was released in January, and I believe the title is an appropriate description of who we are as Southern Baptists.

MILTON A. HOLLIFIELD JR.
BSC executive director-treasurer

Throughout our history, we have been and continue to be a denomination that believes that we can accomplish more together than we can apart. The book's author, Scott Hildreth, writes from his unique perspective as a former missionary with the International Mission Board who now serves a missions professor at Southeastern Baptist Theological Seminary, right here in North Carolina.

In my endorsement for the book, I wrote "Together on God's Mission explains why cooperation and personal involvement in missions is the heartbeat of who Southern Baptists have been and remain. Hildreth's work also reveals how those who hold to Baptist distinctives along with their personal convictions can work together in fulfilling the Great Commission."

Those of you who know me or may have heard me speak about missions will know that I never ask individuals or churches to support the Cooperative Program. Instead, I encourage and challenge them to support missions through the Cooperative Program.

Supporting missions through the Cooperative Program means that you and your church are engaging both personally and collectively to make Christ known all around the world. When we unite together for that purpose, we demonstrate that we are united in sharing the love of Christ with everyone, which is greater than any differences we may have. I am thankful for the generosity of North Carolina Baptists in supporting missions through the Cooperative Program. Our state convention has increased the Cooperative Program percentage allocation to support SBC missions and ministry efforts for 11 years in a row. Your prayers, personal involvement and financial support are helping advance the gospel in our state, nation and around the world.

Together we are helping churches impact lostness through disciple-making. We are engaging and reaching a number of unreached and unengaged people groups from around the world who are now living here in our state. We are planting churches to reach our growing international population. We are partnering together for missions on local, state, national and international levels. We are doing all this and much more thanks to your faithfulness and God's blessing.

"Fulfill my joy by being like-minded, having the same love, being of one accord, of one mind"
— Philippians 2:2 (NKJV). BA

Setting the record straight: An exercise in brotherly love

When the Southern Baptist Convention (SBC) convenes in June, at least two men will be nominated for president: J.D. Greear and Ken Hemphill. Both men are my brothers in Christ and my friends. I love them, and I am extremely grateful for their ministries. I have nothing negative or unkind to say about either one of them.

As we move towards the annual meeting in Dallas, it is important that we have accurate and truthful information about the candidates. Misinformation is never a good thing.

Unfortunately, in recent days, things are being said and written about Greear that are simply inaccurate and untrue.

I am well aware of an ongoing conversation about the role of SBC entity leaders in the discussion of the SBC presidency. As a voting messenger to our convention, I have personal opinions just as many others do. And I am supportive of an open discussion about the future of our convention. But this is not about that.

This is about our discourse and whether or not we speak truthfully about the facts when we share those opinions.

Greear is a two-time graduate of the institution I serve, a visiting professor on our faculty, a pastor who has ministered faithfully in the region in which I live and a longtime friend. I know him well.

So, let me do my best to set the record straight.

Some are saying that Greear neglects and is even dismissive about the work of our state conventions.

Milton Hollifield, executive director-treasurer of the Baptist State Convention of North Carolina, told me personally when he spoke in chapel at Southeastern Baptist Theological Seminary (SEBTS) that The Summit Church is both active and fully supportive of the work of the state convention. If anyone would know whether Greear is supportive of state convention work, Hollifield would be that person.

Some are saying The Summit Church, where J.D. serves as pastor, does not support well the financial work of our state convention and the SBC at large.

The Summit has led North Carolina Baptists the last two years in Cooperative Program (CP) giving. In 2016, Summit gave $553,103 according to the state convention. In 2017, they gave $503,396. They are on target to lead the state again in 2018, and Greear tells me his church has no plans to do anything but continue to give more to the CP.

In 2017, 19 percent of Summit's budget went to Great Commission Giving. In addition to their CP giving, they gave $275,000 to the Lottie Moon Christmas Offering and $100,000 to the Annie Armstrong Easter Offering.

They also are helping fund an endowed chair at SEBTS specifically for training church planters.

That is simply amazing. The data shows a very cooperative Southern Baptist church.

Some are saying Greear is a Calvinist, and therefore he would lead the SBC to be anti-evangelistic and anti-missionary.

Summit has grown from 300 in worship in 2002 to nearly 10,000 in worship in 2018. Over the last six years, Summit has led North Carolina Baptists in baptisms, with the following data:

Year	Baptisms
2012	895
2013	735
2014	928
2015	401
2016	736

My friend Ken Whitten, who will nominate Greear, said, "If that is Calvinism, may God raise up more."

Regarding their position on missions, Summit currently has 158 of its members serving with the International Mission Board. Summit has also planted 40 churches in partnership with the North American Mission Board.

When it comes to discussing an individual's theological positions, it is always best to talk to one another, not about one another.

Greear, without any hesitation whatsoever, affirms the Baptist Faith and Message 2000. When it comes specifically to the doctrine of salvation, he and I hold the exact same position.

In a personal conversation, Greear told me he believes God is sovereign and humans are free. This is a divine mystery taught in scripture, and we should rest in that.

He also believes we should never take away from God's sovereignty or the moral responsibility and freewill of human beings to repent and believe the gospel.

Anything that lowers the temperature of a hot heart for evangelism and missions is not in the Bible and it is not of God.

Greear is not a classic Calvinist, and he has made no secret of his soteriological position both in writing and in speech. I think we should allow him to speak for himself and take him at his word.

He is happy to fellowship and serve with Calvinists and non-Calvinist alike.

Bottom-line: if you love Jesus, the Bible, the gospel, the Church and the lost, he wants you on his team!

This is the J.D. Greear I have come to know, love and respect. This is the J.D. Greear I am proud to have in the classroom teaching seminary students. This is the J.D. Greear who has the support of Jack Graham, James Merritt, Bryant Wright, Johnny Hunt, Ronnie Floyd and Steve Gaines.

And, even though Steve Gaines and J.D. agree that the current president of the SBC should not

Oklahoma pastor Felix Cabrera to be 2nd VP nominee

By DAVID ROACH | Baptist Press

Oklahoma pastor Felix Cabrera will be nominated for second vice president of the Southern Baptist Convention (SBC), Alabama pastor Ed Litton announced March 23.

A Puerto Rico native, Cabrera planted Spanish-speaking Iglesia Bautista Central (IBC) in Oklahoma City in 2015 and has seen the congregation grow from about 12 in worship attendance to more than 200, according to information released by the church. Cabrera also is co-founder of the Hispanic Baptist Pastors Alliance and founder of the RED 1:8 Church Planting Network, which has helped plant 34 churches over the past five years in North America, Puerto Rico, Latin America and Spain.

Litton cited Cabrera's "gospel vision as a church planter, his humble-hearted leadership and how he leverages his leadership gifts to take the gospel to the ends of the earth."

"Felix doesn't sit back and accept the status quo," Litton, pastor of Redemption Church in Mobile, Ala., told Baptist Press via email, "but he humbly gives himself to the Lord's service and to others in order to build up the church and to work together with other pastors and leaders in the Southern Baptist Convention to represent Christ well to the world."

The nomination will occur during the SBC's June 12-13 annual meeting in Dallas.

Cabrera, 39, is among the "powerful young leaders of a new generation that leave me with an impression of hope for the SBC's future," said Litton, a former SBC Pastors' Conference president. "He demonstrates to me the beauty of God's diverse, multiethnic church and he is exactly the kind of man that we should be learning from and following."

During Cabrera's pastorate, IBC has been recognized twice by the Baptist General Convention of Oklahoma (BGCO) for being among the state's top churches in baptisms per capita, IBC reported. The congregation baptized 10 people each of the past two years, according to data from the SBC's Annual Church Profile (ACP).

IBC has classified 15 percent of its undesignated receipts for 2018 as Great Commission Giving, including 7 percent through the Cooperative Program (CP), Southern Baptists' unified program of funding missions and ministries in North America and across the globe.

By convention action in 2011, the SBC defined Great Commission Giving as comprising "contributions to any Baptist association, Baptist state convention, and causes and entities of the Southern Baptist Convention."

During its first two years as an independent congregation, IBC gave 7.9 percent and 9.4 percent respectively of its undesignated receipts through CP, according to a report from the church confirmed by the BGCO and ACP data. In 2016, the church received a letter from then SBC Executive Committee President Frank S. Page commending it for increasing its CP giving by more than 1 percent of undesignated receipts as part of the "1 Percent Challenge." Amid a move in 2017 to "a new, higher-cost facility," IBC stated, the church's Great Commission Giving decreased temporarily to approximately 5 percent and CP giving to 2.9 percent.

Cabrera has served on the SBC's Resolutions Committee and Committee on Committees as well as the Ethics & Religious Liberty Commission's Leadership Council and LifeWay Christian Resources' Hispanic Pastoral Council. Additionally, he is part of Southern Baptists' Hispanic Leaders Council, a group comprising leaders of various Southern Baptist Hispanic ministries seeking to bring focus and cooperation to their work.

Cabrera holds a bachelor's degree from the University of Puerto Rico, a master of arts in pastoral counseling from Liberty Baptist Theological Seminary and a master of arts in church planting from Southeastern Baptist Theological Seminary. Cabrera is pursuing a doctor of ministry degree at Midwestern Baptist Theological Seminary, where he serves as an adjunct professor in the Spanish-language graduate program.

Prior to planting IBC, Cabrera was an associate pastor at churches in Puerto Rico and Oklahoma. Before his call to ministry in 2005, he was general manager of professional basketball teams in Puerto Rico.

He and his wife, Denisse, have two daughters.

Cabrera is the first announced nominee for second vice president. Announced presidential nominees are J.D. Greear, pastor of The Summit Church in Raleigh-Durham, N.C., and former Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary President Ken Hemphill. A.B. Vines, pastor of New Seasons Church in San Diego, has been announced as a nominee for first vice president. BR

Tar Heel Baptist Church: 'A story of hope'

By CHAD AUSTIN | BSC Communications

Drive through the town of Tar Heel in southeastern North Carolina on a Sunday morning and chances are there will be about as many people worshipping inside Tar Heel Baptist Church than the population of the town itself.

Tar Heel Baptist Church isn't a mega-church. It's not even a church in a growing community.

But thanks to a renewed focus on loving God and loving others, the Lord is moving in the church and in the community, where the population was just 117 people according to the 2010 census.

"If God can move at Tar Heel, He can move anywhere," said Devon Varnam, who has served as senior pastor of Tar Heel Baptist Church since March 2015.

Prior to Varnam's arrival, Tar Heel Baptist was like many churches in the United States – in a state of plateau or decline. According to various studies statistics, as a great majority of churches across all denominations can be classified as plateaued or declining, and many close their doors each year.

One characteristic of many churches that are plateaued or declining is that they have become more inward focused than outward focused. Varnam says that was true of Tar Heel Baptist when he arrived.

Each Sunday School class at Tar Heel Baptist Church adopted a local organization – school, nursing home, law enforcement, firefighters, first responders, substance abuse treatment centers, etc. – to serve. (Screenshot)

When he began his tenure as senior pastor, Varnam says his focus was simply on preaching the Word, following God and encouraging his congregation to do the same. As Varnam and his congregation connected and got to know one another, a vision to reach the community and surrounding area in Bladen County was birthed.

Over time, Tar Heel Baptist Church shifted its focus from inside its four walls to others around them by sharing the love of Christ with neighbors, friends and others. Part of that focus involved Varnam and church leaders shifting Tar Heel Baptist's ministries to focus on the community.

"Tar Heel Baptist wants to make much of Jesus in the community by loving God and loving our neighbors," Varnam said.

Every Sunday School class adopted a local organization to serve, which included local schools, nursing homes, law enforcement, firefighters, first responders, substance abuse treatment centers and more. Sunday School class members serve their respective organizations in a variety of ways on a consistent basis, and the church engages in weekend service initiatives in the community periodically throughout the year.

As a result of those local missions efforts, more members are engaging in missions beyond the community. In the aftermath of hurricanes Irma and Maria, the church sent volunteers to Florida and Puerto Rico to share the love of Christ by assisting with in the recovery and cleanup efforts.

By reaching out into the community, more people are coming to know Christ and growing as disciples. Varnam says average worship attendance on Sunday mornings has grown from about 80 to about 116. Sunday School attendance has increased from about 60 on a typical Sunday morning to about 100.

Plus, the church is attracting younger individuals and families from a variety of ethnic and cultural backgrounds. Varnam says the fastest growing demographic in the church is 20-to-30 year olds. Tar Heel

Operation Reach shows need for new churches

By MIKE CRESWELL | BSC Communications

At least 46 new churches – and probably more – are needed to reach specific neighborhoods and people groups in Union County right now, a Baptist study conference called Operation Reach has determined.

Sponsored jointly by the Union Baptist Association and the Baptist State Convention of North Carolina, the daylong conference at the association's office in Monroe on Feb. 13 was divided into two parts.

In the morning, some 50 church pastors and lay leaders heard statistical presentations on the county's needs. In the afternoon, participants loaded onto eight church vans and toured eight different regions of the county. They were looking for pockets of lostness – areas not being reached by existing churches, Baptist or otherwise.

In late afternoon, participants returned to the association office to present their findings on large worksheets posted around the room. An immediate tally from those eight research groups showed 46 churches are needed. But further study on those findings will almost certainly show even more new churches are needed, said Mark Gray, conference leader and team leader for the convention's Church Planting Team.

Several church planting consultants serving under Gray gave reports based on their extensive church planting ministry carried out across North Carolina and also took part in the survey trips.

Union County, which lies south and southeast of Greater Charlotte, has been part of the rapid growth which has occurred in the Charlotte-Concord-Gastonia metro area in recent decades.

Union County now has about 225,000 residents and has added a whopping

30,000 new people since 2010, with more new residents coming all the time, reported Eric Cook, Union Association's director of missions, as he opened the conference. Those new residents include people from all over the world, he said. "The world has come to us in Union County."

Further, Cook said, Union County's rapid growth is almost certainly going to increase as the Monroe Connector, a big toll road project 12 lanes wide in places, becomes operational.

Cook showed an animation video which showed how the road will impact the county. Though designed to bypass the city of Monroe, that new road will, in effect, open new parts of Union County to development and bring in tens of thousands of new residents.

Cook pointed out that Wingate University, located off Highway 74 east of Monroe, has changed its front entrance to face the new Monroe Connector, a recognition of the future volumes of traffic it is expected to carry.

Baptists have to address this challenge, Cook insisted, adding that. "If we planted churches every week for 10 years, we would still be behind the curve." Many of the county's existing Baptist churches are largely the same and do things the same way, Cook said. Many new churches are needed which will also incorporate new approaches to bring more people to Jesus, he said.

Cook warned the challenge is too great for church turfism, and he urged Baptists at the meeting to look beyond "our little corner of the world." They must work together as the early church did, he said. "There is strength in numbers," he declared.

The Operation Reach approach of pushing church leaders in an area to look with eyes focused on lostness proved successful when one was held in Greensboro in 2007. That study day identified people groups and areas where more than 40 new churches were needed in metro Greensboro. Five years later, Baptists had started new churches to reach 30 of those, said Ken Holland.

Holland, retired Church Planting Team consultant who did two stints as director, helped set up that original Operation Reach concept. Now 88, he was at the Union meeting to lay out the Bible's firm teaching on the importance of missions. The early church grew quickly and went everywhere, he said.

"The church has been able to go even

FBC Sutherland Springs launches building project

By MIKE EBERT | NAMB

First Baptist Church Sutherland Springs, the Southern Baptist congregation whose members were targeted by a gunman in one of the worst mass shootings in U.S. history, will begin construction of a new worship center and education building in May.

Plans were announced March 27 by Frank Pomeroy, the church's pastor. The North American Mission Board (NAMB) will accept donations for the project. If donations do not cover all of the construction expenses, NAMB will cover any remaining costs.

"Our primary goal is to lift up Jesus in our community," Pomeroy said. "Sutherland Springs has a certain distinction because of the enormity of the tragedy that took place at our church, but every community is touched by tragedy. Every family and every person has hurts and sorrows. We want to be a lighthouse. The light of the gospel shines hope, even in the deepest darkness."

Pomeroy said the new facilities will put the church in an even better position to serve others.

"We are grateful for the outpouring of prayers, for the love that we have felt," Pomeroy said.

"So many have done so much for us, and it has been a huge blessing. The purpose of these new buildings will be to serve God and serve others. That is why we exist."

NAMB President Kevin Ezell raised the issue of a new building with Pomeroy in a conversation near the end of 2017. NAMB asked Myrick Gurosky and Associates (MG&A) in Birmingham, Ala., to lead in the development, design and construction of the buildings. MG&A has worked closely with Pomeroy and leaders of the church in developing designs.

MG&A specializes in the management of design and construction and has worked on hundreds of church projects across the country.

"We are grateful to play a small part in the healing journey for our brothers and sisters in Sutherland Springs," Ezell said. "Southern Baptists were devastated by what took place [last November]. We immediately knew that, as their Southern Baptist family we wanted to lock arms with them, doing whatever we could to help restore hope. We know a lot of people want to help, and fortunately our experience in facilitating and mobilizing partners, volunteers, donations and prayer support in times of crisis has prepared us well to lead in a time such as this."

Groups, organizations and individuals wanting to donate to the project can visit NAMB.net and click "Give."

The link will take them to a special area for giving to the Sutherland Springs building effort. Donations of services and materials can be given through the website restoresutherlandssprings.com.

"We have a lot of experience working with churches," said MG&A President Scott Gurosky, "but this situation is unique. Already my team and I have been deeply moved by the faith, courage and perseverance that pastor Frank and his congregation have shown. We are excited to give them this opportunity to move forward in faith toward a new beginning."

The planned worship center features an exterior of stone and glass. Two towers on the corners of the building will emanate glowing light. Inside, the worship center will provide seating for 250 people. A memorial to the 26 people who lost their lives in the attack will be located in space between the worship center and the education facility.

The education building is designed to host classrooms for infant through adult attendees. Outside, a lighted, paved parking lot also will be included.

MG&A and their consultants have donated hundreds of thousands of dollars in development and design work. Gurosky said cost of the two buildings will be approximately $3 million, but they anticipate that donations of materials and services will significantly reduce the final total.

"We have already been approached by several companies that want to help the people of this church and town," Gurosky said. "We want to give as many people as possible that opportunity, and it's our goal to find partners to help us complete the planned facilities so that actual cost of the work is minimal."

Construction on the property is being split into two phases. Phase 1 will include a worship center and education building. Funding for this phase is backed by NAMB with construction expected to begin in early May and a completion date anticipated for early 2019.

Plans for Phase 2 of the project include a multi-purpose community and activity center and will be funded from other sources.

LESSONS FROM THE LIFE OF BILLY GRAHAM

"America's Pastor – the Rev. Billy Graham, dead at age 99," read a news headline Feb. 21, 2018.

As I read that headline I began to remember two vivid moments in my life. The first, as a boy, I was sitting with my family in our living room before a black-and-white television set viewing a Billy Graham Crusade. I was spellbound as Dr. Graham spoke and amazed at the thousands who responded to the invitation.

The second memory was from 1986. I was a doctoral student at New Orleans Baptist Theological Seminary studying evangelism, attending a Billy Graham School of Evangelism and serving as a counselor for the Billy Graham Crusade in Tallahassee, Fla. Once again, night after night, I heard a powerful message from God's evangelist and thousands responded to Christ. These are cherished memories that will last a lifetime.

Like you, I have reflected on the life and ministry of Billy Graham in recent weeks. I am convinced Dr. Graham encouraged us all to:

● Communicate the gospel of Christ with crystal clarity

Dr. Graham communicated the gospel so simply. He was a trained theologian who possessed the vocabulary of a scholar, but he intentionally chose to proclaim a simple message – "Jesus said, I am the way, and the truth, and the life; no man cometh unto the Father, but by Me" (John 14:6).

● Passionately plead for souls

His invitations were powerful because of the desire of his heart for all to come to Christ, the urgency in his voice that "today is the day, now is the time," and the certainty in his mind that eternity hung in the balance.

● Live our lives and conduct our ministries with humility and integrity

Dr. Graham gave us sound rules to live by. They include: operate with financial transparency; avoid even the appearance of sexual immorality; avoid criticizing other pastors and churches; be painstakingly honest in all publicity.

● Embrace a "whosoever" gospel

Perhaps no other verse was quoted more often by Billy Graham than John 3:16. Across 185 different countries and territories and to 215 million people, Dr. Graham wanted all to know, "For God so loved the world that He gave His only begotten Son, that whosoever believes in him shall not perish, but have everlasting life" (John 3:16).

Online worship training, certification now available to NC Baptists

By CHAD AUSTIN | BSC Communications

Worship leaders looking to renew their church's worship can now earn a certificate in worship leadership and receive college credit at Fruitland Baptist Bible College as part of a new online hybrid class being offered through the Baptist State Convention of North Carolina's (BSC) worship and music ministry.

Worship Leader Boot Camp: Beyond Extreme is one of two new online courses developed by Kenny Lamm, BSC senior consultant for worship and music.

The 12-week "Beyond Extreme" course will cover biblical foundations of worship and practical aspects of planning and preparing worship services. Class enrollees will work through the course material through online teaching videos, resources and discussion forums with a high level of interaction with the instructor and fellow classmates.

Once per week, the entire class will meet with the instructor though a live video conference to discuss the material. Participants will also complete a final project during the final two weeks of the course.

The first "Beyond Extreme" course is scheduled for this spring, beginning May 21 and concluding Aug. 13. Cost is $139 per person.

A limited number of openings are available for the course, and enrollment is limited to N.C. Baptists until one week before the course begins.

Students who successfully complete the "Beyond Extreme" class can receive credit toward any degree at Fruitland Baptist Bible College and receive a Basic Certificate in Worship Leadership through Fruitland.

"Many worship leaders who have been unable to attend one of our live worship training events have expressed a desire to receive similar equipping and encouragement in an online format," Lamm said. "We are grateful to be able to meet that need and offer the same content and instruction from our popular Worship Leader Boot Camps to more people with even more depth than a live event allows."

"Additionally, we are also thankful for the administration at Fruitland Baptist Bible College who have recognized the value of this training and made it possible for students to receive both college credit and certification upon successful completion of this course."

A self-paced online version of Worship Leader Boot Camp is also available. The course includes 29 videos featuring 6.5 hours of instruction that individuals can work through at their own pace. Cost of Worship Leader Boot Camp Online is $30, and individuals may start at any time. Discounts are available for N.C. Baptist churches. No instructor interaction, certification or college credit is available with the self-paced online class.

With the two new online Worship Leader Boot Camp offerings individuals now have five different varieties of training from which to choose.

Lamm offers three options for his live, in-person trainings.

Worship Leader Boot Camp Basic is a one-day conference held on a Saturday that is open to anyone on a church's worship team.

Worship Leader Boot Camp Plus covers the material from the basic training and incorporates a full band to lead extended times of corporate worship. Worship Leader Boot Camp Plus begins on a Friday evening and concludes on Saturday afternoon. The added worship times provide opportunities for personal renewal and refreshment, Lamm said.

Worship Leader Boot Camp Extreme is the third option for live, in-person training. Boot Camp Extreme covers the core material and adds elements of additional material that addresses the day to day work of a worship leader. Boot Camp Extreme is held at Caraway Conference Center and begins at lunchtime on Thursday and concludes Saturday afternoon.

"Our goal is to provide as many training opportunities for pastors and worship leaders as possible in a variety of formats," Lamm said.

All in-person and online trainings are scheduled to be held at different times throughout the remainder of 2018. For more information, including dates and pricing of the live trainings and additional details about the new online courses, visit WorshipLeaderBootCamp.org. ■ departure and also to conduct a search for the next president and CEO of the SBC Executive Committee. I am personally counting on the prayers of Southern Baptists, as I know are all who serve on our SBC Executive Committee."

Page released a statement as well on the afternoon of March 27:

"It is with deep regret that I tender my resignation from the SBC Executive Committee and announce my retirement from active ministry, effective immediately. As a result of a personal failing, I have embarrassed my family, my Lord, myself, and the Kingdom.

"Out of a desire to protect my family and those I have hurt, I initially announced my retirement earlier today without a complete explanation. However, after further wrestling with my personal indiscretion, it became apparent to me that this situation must be acknowledged in a more forthright manner. It is my most earnest desire in the days to come to rebuild the fabric of trust with my wife and daughters, those who know me best and love me most."

Page, 65, as EC president, has held a key role in coordinating the work of the SBC's national ministries, encompassing two mission boards, six seminaries and other entities, overseeing a Cooperative Program budget of nearly $200 million yearly. Page's work also included building relationships with 42 state and regional Baptist conventions and 47,000-plus Southern Baptist churches in all 50 states.

Page was the 2006-2008 president of the SBC, elected to the post as pastor of First Baptist Church in Taylors, S.C. Before being elected as Executive Committee president in 2010, Page was serving as vice president of evangelization for the North American Mission Board.

Among the hallmarks of Page's eight years as EC president have been strong calls for personal evangelism, support for the Cooperative Program channel of Southern Baptist missions and ministry support, and inclusion of numerous ethnic groups, women, young leaders and small-church pastors in the life of the convention. The Pages have two daughters, Laura and Allison; a third daughter, Melissa, died in 2009. ■

American pastor charged with 'terrorism' in Turkey

By DAVID ROACH | Baptist Press

American pastor Andrew Brunson has been indicted in Turkey on charges of terrorism. The American Center for Law and Justice (ACLJ) claims the charges amount to an admission "that Turkey considers sharing the gospel an 'act of terrorism.'"

"The 62-page indictment, wholly lacking merit, provides no evidence regarding criminal action by Pastor Andrew, which comes as no surprise," the ACLJ stated in a March 20 news release. "Pastor Andrew, who has lived in Turkey for 23 years, serving as Pastor of the Izmir Resurrection Church, has maintained his innocence and has reiterated that he has been in Turkey for only one reason, to tell about Jesus Christ. Incredibly, the indictment now admits that Turkey considers sharing the gospel an 'act of terrorism.'"

A court date of April 16 has been set, the ACLJ reported. If convicted, Brunson, 50, could face 35 years in prison.

The United States Commission on International Religious Freedom (USCIRF) reported previously that the case against Brunson was "largely based on a purported 'secret witness' and secret evidence" which Turkish officials "refuse to make public." With the indictment, however, the ACLJ stated, "the case file is now finally open, and by the end of the week, we should have access to all of the alleged evidence."

Various media outlets had reported Brunson was indicted last week and charged with "leadership in a terrorist organization," with prosecutors seeking a possible life sentence. The ACLJ issued an update March 15 implying the indictment may not, in fact, have been submitted in court. However, this week's ACLJ update clarified that the indictment was submitted last week despite alleged statements by a Turkish prosecutor to the contrary. When reports of the indictment first surfaced, the USCIRF said it "strongly condemns" the charges and asked the Donald Trump administration to "redouble their ongoing efforts to secure Pastor Brunson's release."

Brunson has lived in Turkey 23 years, and his pastorate is a small, evangelical Presbyterian church in Izmir, according to the USCIRF website. ■

Longtime Alabama editor announces retirement

The Alabama Baptist staff

After 50 years of serving Baptist newspapers – 43 of those years in the lead editor role – Bob Terry is retiring Dec. 31.

Terry, an Alabama native who became editor of The Alabama Baptist (TAB) in 1995, has repeatedly led the paper to rise to the top among its peers. For more than two decades, it has been named annually in the top three regional Christian newspapers.

He also has won numerous personal awards for his editorials and news writing.

Before coming back to Alabama, Terry became executive secretary of the Association of State Baptist Publications (ASBP), a role he carried over into his time as editor of TAB. Terry was honored in February for serving in the ASBP leadership role for 25 years.

“I envisioned the position [as TAB editor] as a short-lived experience which would help me learn more about my denomination from the inside,” Terry wrote in his March 22 column that announced his retirement.

“In turn, that would make me a better pastor which I thought was my calling. Obviously, God had other things in mind.”

During his career, he also served in other leadership roles both nationally and internationally, such as chair of Baptist World Alliance’s communications committee and postal representative for the nation’s religious press.

hearts of people,” he said.

Courtland Perkins, KDI content strategist, joined Strickland on the show.

Both men affirmed the positive changes happening in many Christian organizations, but also expressed concern about attempts to diversify without anticipating potential difficulties.

“Many well-intended attempts to diversify leadership teams are unsuccessful due to a lack of cultural awareness and underestimating the complexities of fostering racial harmony,” Strickland said. “I’m not sure they know how to translate this multicultural passion into informed practice.”

He identified cultural assimilation and tokenism as possible dangers.

Perkins explained why many ethnic minorities are hesitant to work in majority white ministries.

He referred to racial tensions that were stoked in the United States during the controversial 2016 political cycle, in addition to America’s long history of ethnic strife.

“There is a lack of trust ... and a lack of credibility,” he said, when ministries say they support diversity but do not want to make or accept the needed changes to support multiethnic teams.

“Unfortunately,” Perkins said, “multi-ethnic church has been more of a fad than a biblical conviction for many people.”

He outlined the Bible’s cover-to-cover vision for diversity – “God’s heart for the nations” – and warned of cultural uniformity in Christian ministries. “If you are only doing ministry with people who look like you, act like you, share the same ethnicity, language and background, then you are going to have blind spots,” said Perkins. “Having the diversity of other people helps you to see the places you have missed thus far in your spiritual journey. ... We need one another.”

Strickland and Perkins both emphasized the unique ministry networking opportunities that will be available during two sessions of the Link Conference.

Speakers include Jerome Gay, pastor of Vision Church in Raleigh; Andy Davis, pastor of First Baptist Church in Durham; Aaron Anderson, pastor of Vintage Church in Durham; Matthew Hodges, lay minister at Christ Our King Community Church in Raleigh; and SEBTS President Danny Akin.

WALTER STRICKLAND

Before becoming editor of TAB, Terry served as associate editor of Kentucky’s Western Recorder for seven years, then as the editor of Missouri’s Word & Way for 20 years.

He earned a bachelor of arts from Mississippi College in Clinton in 1965, then went on to earn a master’s degree and doctor of ministry degree from The Southern Baptist Theological Seminary in Louisville, Ky. He also holds an honorary doctor of sacred theology degree from Southwest Baptist University in Bolivar, Mo.

Through the years, Terry also has served Alabama’s churches as an interim pastor on numerous occasions.

A reception will be held in his honor at the Alabama Baptist State Convention in November.

“This is not goodbye,” Terry wrote. “My race is not yet over. I have not completed my course, to use the Apostle Paul’s analogy in 2 Timothy 4:7. There are nine more months in 2018 and I plan to run the race to the end.”

Editor-elect Jennifer Rash will begin her new role on Jan. 1.

Gardner-Webb adds doctorate

Gardner-Webb University

The Godbold School of Business at Gardner-Webb University (GWU) will offer a doctorate of business administration (DBA) degree in fall 2018. The new program will meet at the GWU Charlotte Campus. Courses will be held online and offer required residencies of four to five days per semester.

The 60 course hours required to earn the doctorate will include 24 hours of foundational classes, 24 in the selected major and 12 for the dissertation. Four concentrations will be offered: Accounting, finance, international business and marketing. Consistent with the academic and Christian mission of Gardner-Webb and the Godbold School of Business, the DBA is an applied, multidisciplinary terminal degree. The course of study is designed to provide students with effective solutions – rooted in Christian ethics and values – for today’s business challenges.

Mercy Hill merger expands community outreach

By K. ALLAN BLUME | BR Editor

Mercy Hill is a multi-site church in Greensboro that was planted less than six years ago by The Summit Church in Durham. On Jan. 28 Mercy Hill launched its third campus in a facility that another church gave them.

In 2014 the leadership of nearby Edgefield Baptist Church approached Mercy Hill's leaders about the possibility of merging. "It was a pretty healthy church averaging about 120 in weekly services," said Bryan Miller, missions director at Mercy Hill.

Edgefield's pastor at the time, Tim Tangen, felt called to military chaplaincy. Miller said Tangen "considered how his departure might affect the church and weighed the church's options for future outreach in northwest Greensboro. At that point he reached out to Mercy Hill to talk about merger options and gifting the church's assets to Mercy Hill."

After several months of discussions, the two churches agreed to move ahead. Edgefield's property was deeded to Mercy Hill and members were invited to take steps to join Mercy Hill.

"It wasn't like a mass migration,"

"Our prayer through the process was that we would see at least 500 people be part of Edgefield," said David McNees, above right, Mercy Hill Church's Edgefield Road Campus Director. "Our first week we had 474 adults and 123 children attending. That opened more seats for people at our other campuses, so more ministry can happen there." (Contributed photo)

Miller explained. "Each person from Edgefield was asked to go through Mercy Hill's membership process just like everyone else who joins the church."

About 90 of Edgefield's regular attenders completed the membership process and "have been very faithful," said Miller. "Some of the Edgefield people were good church members who attended and gave, but were not serving in the church's ministry. Now they are."

Looking back at Edgefield's decision, Tangen believes the congregation did the right thing.

"Merging with Mercy Hill took a tremendous amount of self-sacrifice and faith," he said. "We could have chosen the status quo, but our church prayed and in wisdom we found God's blessing. Merging gave us the opportunity to be part of a movement of God and do something that will outlive our lives."

For several years, the Edgefield facilities were used as church offices, some special events and a few classes, but not for Sunday services. Early in 2017 Mercy Hill's leaders began talking about the launch of a third location at Edgefield. Renovations were completed at the site in preparation for an early 2018 launch.

David McNees was assigned as campus pastor. Previously he was a Southern Baptist missionary in West Africa through the International Mission Board and served three churches in Virginia and South Carolina.

"Returning to North Carolina a few years ago, we landed in Asheboro," McNees said. "I knew pastor Andrew [Hopper] and we had some other connections at Mercy Hill, so it made sense for us to go there – we wanted to be in a solid, gospel-centered church."

"I served as a consultant with the Baptist State Convention of North Carolina, working with UPGs [unreached people groups] in Greensboro in a pocket of lostness and worked part time with Mercy Hill at the same time. Then I was asked to be full time with Mercy Hill."

The Edgefield site was the third campus for Mercy Hill. Following the same model they used to launch a second campus, three interest meetings were set so lead pastor Andrew Hopper and McNees could share the vision and strategy. Each of the 150 adults on the final launch team was assigned a place of service and several "practice services" were held to insure the system worked.

"Our prayer through the process was that we would see at least 500 people be part of Edgefield," McNees added. "Our first week we had 474 adults and 123 children attending. That opened more seats for people at our other campuses, so more ministry can happen there."

"We believe God is going to use us in that part of northwest Guilford County to impact people who are either de-churched, who never heard the gospel at all or who need a fresh encounter with the Lord."

Seventeen were baptized at the Edgefield site in the first two months.

As Mercy Hill's missions director, Miller said he focuses on "church planting, national partnerships and mobilizing our people to the nations." He is also one of several shepherding elders and coordinates eight community groups that meet primarily in homes throughout the week for Bible study.

"I know a lot of churches are struggling with the next life cycle of their church and thinking about merging," said Miller. "It was such a witness to see how the people of Edgefield were so very open handed and so Kingdom-minded – to see the level of maturity they had, and how that raised the level of spiritual maturity in our young church at Mercy Hill. But now, they have also grown."

There were two agreements in the merger plan, Miller noted. Randy Titus, Edgefield's associate pastor, was to be retained for one year. "He stayed on and became one of our executive pastors, overseeing the campuses. Randy has been very valuable to us," said Miller.

Edgefield was an independent Baptist church, and supported its own missionaries. Miller said, "The second agreement we had was to retain support for Edgefield's missionaries until they returned to the United States on stateside furlough. Some of them have proved to be our best partnerships."

"Mercy Hill is on a relentless pursuit of the lost in our community; people are the mission," said Andrew Hopper. "Planting the Edgefield campus in the northwest community helps us to equip our folks for 'come and see' evangelism by placing the gathering place in their backyard."

"Our campusing model is primarily to follow our people. We have hundreds of people coming from that area so we want to give them a place to invite those people with whom they live, work and play. The original church at Edgefield had a desire to reach [its] community, and we desire to honor that legacy through the Edgefield campus." BR

Diversity & churches: Progress being made, study says

By BOB SMIETANA | Facts & Trends

Protestant churches may be a little more diverse these days. And that's a good thing, their pastors say in a new study released March 20.

Eighty-one percent of Protestant pastors say their congregation is predominantly made up of one racial or ethnic group. That's down from 86 percent four years ago, according to the study conducted this past Aug. 30-Sept. 18 by LifeWay Research.

It's a small but significant step, said Scott McConnell, executive director of LifeWay Research, in a nation where Sunday mornings often remain segregated.

"Protestant churches are still mostly divided by race," McConnell said. "But they're heading in the right direction."

Pastors want to see diversity

LifeWay Research surveyed 1,000 Protestant pastors last fall about racial diversity in their congregations – and then compared the results to a similar survey in 2013.

In the most recent survey, 93 percent of pastors – including 80 percent who strongly agree – say every church should strive to achieve racial diversity. Four percent disagree. Three percent are not sure.

Four years earlier, 85 percent of pastors agreed churches should strive for diversity. That included 66 percent who strongly agreed, while 12 percent disagreed and 3 percent weren't sure.

Pastors in the South (96 percent) are more likely than pastors in other regions to say churches should strive for diversity.

White pastors (94 percent) are more likely to agree than pastors from other ethnic backgrounds (86 percent), while 88 percent of African American pastors agree churches should strive for diversity. Lutheran pastors are least likely (82 percent) to agree compared to pastors in other denominations.

When it comes to congregation diversity, 81 percent of pastors in the latest survey say their church mostly consists of one racial group. Sixteen percent disagree. Three percent are not sure.

Pastors of larger churches – those with 250 or more attenders – were least likely (74 percent) to say their church is made up mostly of one ethnicity. That jumps to 81 percent for churches with 249 or fewer attenders.

Based on denominational affiliation, Lutheran pastors (89 percent) are most likely to say their church is made up of predominantly one ethnic group. Baptist (81 percent), Presbyterian/Reformed (77 percent) and Pentecostal pastors (68 percent) are less likely.

Not afraid to talk about race

Racial reconciliation is a fairly common topic for pastors to address, LifeWay Research reports.

About two-thirds of pastors (63 percent) say they speak about racial reconciliation in sermons or large group messages at least a few times in a year. Thirty-nine percent talk about it several times a year. Nine percent discuss racial reconciliation several times a month, while 14 percent do so about once a month.

For a significant number of Protestant pastors (37 percent), addressing racial reconciliation is not a high priority. Twelve percent address the topic about once a year. About a quarter either rarely (17 percent) or never (4 percent) address racial reconciliation or don't know (4 percent).

Pastors are likely working on reconciliation in their personal lives, McConnell said. He pointed to a 2016 LifeWay Research survey, which showed most Protestant pastors (57 percent) spent time socializing with neighbors of other ethnicities. More than 7 in 10 (72 percent) had a meal in the previous month with someone of another ethnicity.

But McConnell said it's not clear that people in the pew will embrace racial reconciliation.

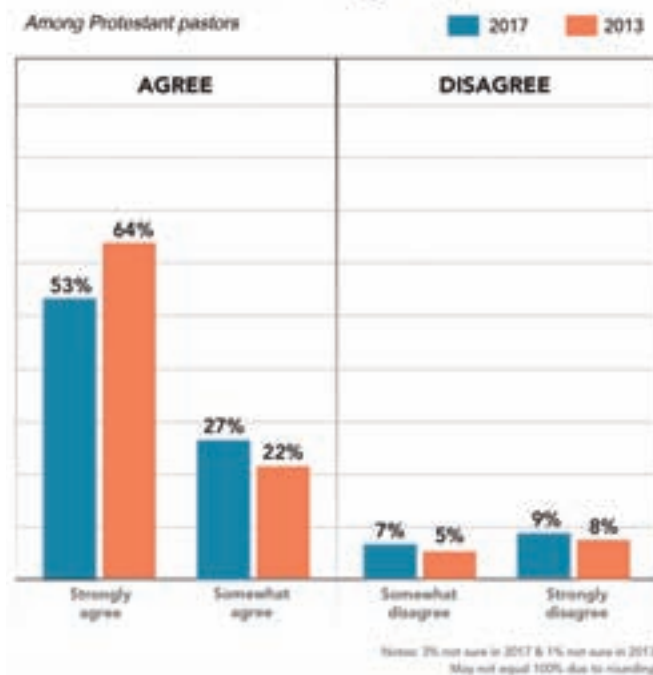

A 2014 LifeWay Research study found two-thirds of American churchgoers felt their church had done enough to become diverse. And fewer than half (40 percent) said their church needed to become more diverse.

More than half of churchgoers disagreed when asked if their church needed to become more ethnically diverse. That included a third who strongly disagreed.

Evangelical churchgoers (71 percent) were most likely to say their church is diverse enough. White churchgoers (37 percent) were least likely to say their church should become more diverse. African Americans (51 percent) and Hispanic-Americans (47 percent) were more likely to say their church needs to be more diverse.

The question of diversity will likely become more pressing for churches in the future, McConnell said. About half of the children under 10 in the United States are ethnic minorities, according to the U.S. Census Bureau. "Pastors want their congregations to be more diverse – because their communities are more diverse," McConnell said. "But people in the pews aren't there yet. There are hard cultural divides to overcome."

Methodology

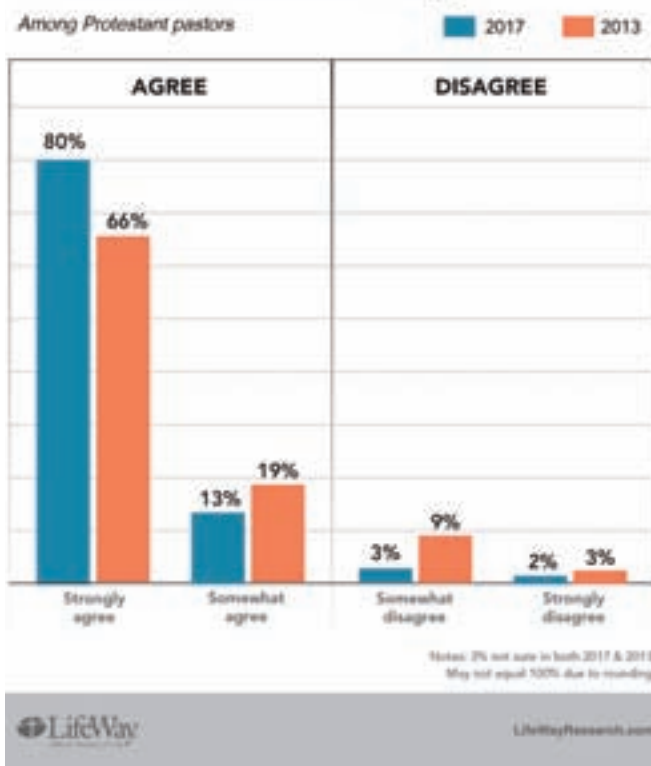

The phone survey of 1,000 Protestant pastors was conducted Aug. 30 to Sept. 18, 2017. The calling list was a stratified random sample, drawn from a list of all Protestant churches. Quotas were used for church size. Each interview was conducted with the senior pastor, minister or priest of the church called. Responses were weighted by region to more accurately reflect the population. The completed sample is 1,000 surveys. The sample provides 95 percent confidence that the sampling error does not exceed plus or minus 3.2 percent. Margins of error are higher in subgroups. Comparisons are also made to a telephone survey of 1,007 pastors using the same methodology Sept. 4-19, 2013 and 1000 pastors Sept. 11-18, 2014.

LifeWay Research is a Nashville-based, evangelical research firm that specializes in surveys about faith in culture and matters that affect churches.

Quadrupling CP giving, church plant casts vision

By ERIN ROACH | Baptist Press

A Denver-area church plant, in only its third year, voted to quadruple its giving through the Cooperative Program, realizing the value of the missions-support system that has aided them – and through which they can help reach the world for Christ.

“It’s one thing to plant a multiplying church in Denver. It’s another thing to be a part of planting multiplying churches all over the country and world,” Ben Mandrell, pastor of Storyline Fellowship in Arvada, told Baptist Press.

“Through the Cooperative Program, we can be in a thousand places. Without it, we can only be in one place.”

Mandrell was pastor of Englewood Baptist Church in Jackson, Tenn., when God began stirring his heart toward church planting. When Kevin Ezell was named president of the North American Mission Board, Mandrell was “inspired by what was happening,” Ezell, meanwhile, knew that First Baptist Church in Orlando had been interested in planting a church in Denver, and he encouraged Mandrell to see if he would be a fit for the project.

Storyline Fellowship launched in February 2015 with 65 people who had moved to Denver from around the country to help plant the church, Mandrell recounted.

After three preview services at the end of 2014, Storyline was able to see 300 people in attendance for the official launch. Now they have about 900 people in worship.

The church has been meeting in an elementary school but recently purchased an old Walmart building and is in the process of converting that space to a 60,000-square-foot facility on the main street of their target area.

Despite the funds needed for the new location, Ezell encouraged Mandrell to lead Storyline Fellowship to give through the Cooperative Program and specifically to work with the Baptist General Convention of Colorado.

“One of our core values from the start has been teamwork,” Mandrell said. “We not only believe in building teams but in being part of a team, and the SBC is our team. So we want to give back and help other churches get started.”

Mandrell, in meeting last year with Colorado’s new executive director, Nathan Lorick, wanted to set a goal for Storyline Fellowship to be in the top 10 of churches in the state giving through the Cooperative Program.

So with a projected 2018 budget of $1.7 million, Storyline Fellowship plans to give $40,000 to the Cooperative Program through the Colorado convention, $5,000 to their local Baptist association, $20,000 to the Lottie Moon Christmas Offering for International Missions, $20,000 to the Annie Armstrong Easter Offering for North American Missions and $5,000 to the Colorado state missions offering.

Storyline has budgeted another $57,000 to Southern Baptist church planters for a total of $147,000 in missions giving. Combined with dollars they’re investing in local missions efforts and international missions trips, Storyline is sending out 14 percent of its budget.

“We have latched on to some value statements, and one of them is ‘For the Kingdom, not the castle,’” Mandrell said.

“We use that as a fun way to say we don’t want to be just about ourselves and building things for ourselves.... We need a church home, but even as we do that, we’re going to stay committed to the Kingdom.”

Being a church plant in a city like Denver means Storyline has to work to create

Rick Lewis, associate pastor of outreach and missions at Storyline Fellowship in Arvada, Colo., moved to the state 30 years ago as a church planter and has known the vital role the Cooperative Program plays in achieving missions endeavors. credibility, “which means we need to do a lot of good in the city,” Mandrell said. One of the ways they’ve done that is to focus on a local high school that has been struggling with teacher turnover and a lot of at-risk students.

“We’ve bought Thanksgiving meal baskets for 65 families who are registered as homeless but their kids go to the high school,” Mandrell said.

“We’ve donated prom dresses and altered all of them and done free hair and makeup. We’ve made peanut butter and jelly sandwiches for athletes who rode on the bus to sports games but couldn’t afford to eat while they were there.”

The way Storyline has grown, Mandrell said, is for people to say, “You should come to Storyline and sit next to me.” The fastest way to grow a church in that context, he said, is for people to walk away and say, “I really felt loved there.”

“In Denver, most unchurched people embrace Christian community before they embrace the Christian faith,” Mandrell said.

“They move here to play and to recreate, but then they experience enormous loneliness and are looking for friends and community, and there just aren’t a lot of places where you can find those kinds of relationships. The church provides that.”

Rick Lewis, Storyline’s associate pastor of outreach and missions, moved to Colorado as a church planter 30 years ago and planted several churches in the state before becoming executive pastor at Riverside Baptist Church in Denver about 18 years ago.

He had left Riverside to pastor in Littleton and was serving as an International Mission Board trustee when he began to talk with David Uth, pastor of First Baptist Orlando, about planting a church in Denver.

That was around the same time God was leading Mandrell to Denver, and Lewis joined the team.

He had grown up around strong Cooperative Program giving in Texas and had modeled it at churches he served in Colorado, so it was easy for him to be on board with Storyline’s recent CP decision.

“To whom much is given, much is required,” Lewis told BP.

“We certainly have been given much through Southern Baptist efforts. Our story is one of incredibly being given to – through the North American Mission Board, through the Cooperative Program, through the state of Colorado.

“We’ve had so much support that it just makes sense. It’s just the right thing to do.”

One of the joys of his life, Lewis said, is to now be ministering at a thriving church plant in Arvada, which is the very area he and his wife prayerwalked during their time at Riverside years ago, praying God would reach the families moving into the area.

Lorick, the Colorado executive director, told BP Storyline’s strong Cooperative Program commitment “is a great example to church planters of how each church can make a global impact in any stage of their church.”

“There is nothing that allows a dollar to go further than the Cooperative Program,” Lorick said. “We must understand that the Cooperative Program is not really a program. It’s people and a partnership. It is about partnering together to send people into the mission that God has called us to.

“Storyline is setting the example,” Lorick said, “and I pray many others across the SBC will follow.”

New VBS resource helps churches ‘go, tell’ worldwide

By AARON WILSON | LifeWay Christian Resources

Packing for your next mission trip may have just gotten a whole lot easier. LifeWay Christian Resources has produced a new Vacation Bible School (VBS) program called “Go & Tell Kids” to serve as a gospel presentation tool that’s easy to transport to the mission field and works anywhere.

“‘Go & Tell Kids’ is themeless, meaning people don’t have to drag a bunch of stuff with them halfway around the world, and it’s stripped of uniquely American cultural references,” said Melita Thomas, VBS and kids ministry specialist at LifeWay. “It’s relevant to kids in any culture and setting.”

The idea came from churches who were already adapting LifeWay’s VBS for the mission field.

“Churches who were taking VBS overseas were telling us they needed content that begins with the very basics of Christianity for kids with absolutely no Bible foundation,” Thomas said. “These churches are serving kids who don’t know who God is, much less that He has a Son – and that through the Son, God has a relationship with people.”

Ernestina Gonzalez, an editor for LifeWay Global, has been taking VBS resources outside the U.S. for the past four years. She remembers the impact of one early trip in particular.

“I traveled to Mexico with my two boys in 2014,” she said. “We saved up money for a year to make our dream possible.”

Gonzalez took the VBS theme “Saddle Ridge Ranch” to a rural community in Tamasopo, Mexico. The first day, only six children showed up.

“Without being discouraged, we ran it as if we had hundreds of students,” she said. “The next day, 36 students came. The children from the first day enjoyed the stories, crafts, music, games and snacks so much, they invited everyone at their school.”

Gonzalez was overjoyed when all 36 students made professions of faith in Christ at the end of the VBS experience.

“We couldn’t have been happier,” she recalled. “We reached our goal of taking the gospel to those who hadn’t heard it. It was just us, God’s love for those seeking Him and a VBS kit.”

LifeWay hopes “Go & Tell Kids” will capture more stories like Gonzalez’s by focusing on the basics of the gospel narrative.

“Go & Tell Kids” begins with the story of creation and traces God’s redemptive plan to Christ’s resurrection and the Great Commission.

The content is divided into five 30-minute Bible study sessions for children and five 30-minute sessions for preschoolers. The entire program can fit inside an airport carry-on bag.

The “Go & Tell Kids” kit comes with group visuals and teaching plans preloaded on a flash drive that also contains more than 100 game ideas, crafts, coloring pages, director’s helps and large group presentation ideas and skits. It comes packaged in a backpack with extra room for transporting supplies to the mission field. “Go & Tell Kids” can also be purchased as a purely digital resource from LifeWay.com.

“We tried to create a resource to really fit the mission trip context,” Thomas said.

“You can take ‘Go & Tell Kids’ to Africa and into the rainforest or to a Backyard Bible Club. It’s the core of the gospel that fits neatly into a suitcase. It doesn’t get any more basic than this.” ■

Committee on Resolutions named for 2018 SBC

Baptist Press

Southern Baptist Convention (SBC) President Steve Gaines has named members of the Committee on Resolutions for the June 12-13 SBC annual meeting in Dallas.

Jason Duesing of Missouri was named as the committee’s chairman by Gaines.

Duesing is provost and associate professor of historical theology at Midwestern Baptist Theological Seminary in Kansas City and a member of Antioch Bible Baptist Church in Gladstone, Mo.

Gaines, pastor of Memphis-area Bellevue Baptist Church, appointed the committee in keeping with the provision in SBC Bylaw 20 that its members be named 75 days prior to the start of the annual meeting.

The other committee members, in alphabetical order, are:

- Ken Alford, pastor, Crossroads Baptist Church, Valdosta, Ga.
- Byron Day, pastor, Emmanuel Baptist Church, Laurel, Md.
- Candi Finch, assistant professor of theology in women’s studies, Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary, Fort Worth, Texas; member of Hope Church, Fort Worth.
- Willie McLaurin, special assistant to the executive director, Tennessee Baptist Mission Board, Franklin, Tenn.; member of Simeon Baptist Church, Antioch, Tenn.
- Chris Metcalf, pastor, Lihue Baptist Church, Lihue, Hawaii.
- Jason Paredes, lead pastor, Fielder Church, Arlington, Texas.
- Adron Robinson, senior pastor, Hillcrest Baptist Church, Country Club Hills, Ill.
- Alicia Wong, associate professor of women’s ministry, Gateway Seminary, Ontario, Calif.; member of Rosena Church, San Bernardino, Ca.

● Curtis Woods, associate executive director for convention relations, Kentucky Baptist Convention, Louisville, Ky.; member of Watson Memorial Baptist Church, Louisville.

The committee’s composition, according to Bylaw 20, must include at least two members who served the previous year, with Duesing and Alford meeting this requirement. Bylaw 20 also stipulates that the committee include at least three SBC Executive Committee members. This year they are Alford, Metcalf and Robinson.

The procedure for submitting resolutions is as follows according to Bylaw 20:

● Proposed resolutions may be submitted as early as April 15 but no later than 15 days prior to the SBC annual meeting, giving the Resolutions Committee a two-week period in which to consider submissions. The committee also may propose resolutions for consideration during its deliberations. Resolutions may not be submitted during the annual meeting.

● Proposed resolutions must be accompanied by a letter from a church qualified to send a messenger to the SBC annual meeting certifying that the individual submitting the resolution is a member in good standing.

● Proposed resolutions preferably should be submitted by email or mailed to the Committee on Resolutions in care of the SBC Executive Committee, 901 Commerce St., Nashville, TN 37203. The drafts must be typewritten, titled, dated and include complete contact information for the person and his or her church.

● No person will be allowed to submit more than three resolutions per year.

● If a properly submitted resolution is not forwarded by the Committee on Resolutions to the SBC annual meeting, a two-thirds vote of messengers would be required to bring the proposed resolution to the convention floor. ■ nominate a candidate, Gaines told the Biblical Recorder earlier this year that if Greear is elected and decides to seek a second term, he would be willing to nominate him for re-election in 2019.

J.D. Greear, if elected, would serve Southern Baptists well.

Does this mean other leaders would not? No. We can talk about issues without tearing one another down, and certainly without spreading information that is untrue.

We are followers of Jesus, and the gospel frees us to interact in full transparency. This a conversation we have at least every two years, and it is vital that we pursue it with integrity.

The world is watching and our mission is too important. Our opinions can differ, but our discourse must reflect our witness. We are better than this. ■

Shelby church merger results in greater gospel impact

By CHAD AUSTIN | BSC Communications

When Jeremy Peeler accepted a call to pastor Second Baptist Church in Shelby in 2012, he knew the church was in need of revitalization. Even after experiencing some initial growth, Peeler sensed that God was up to something more.

Around the same time that Peeler began his ministry at Second Baptist, Skip Allen was spearheading the launch of Element Church's Shelby campus, a church plant of Element Church of Forest City. Although Element's Shelby campus experienced rapid growth, Allen, like Peeler, sensed that God was up to something more.

After much prayer and seeking the Lord's leadership, an unlikely partnership became a reality in March 2016 when Second Baptist and Element Church's Shelby campus came together to form Hope Community Church.

"If you had told me ... we're going to be merging with a 109-year-old Second Baptist Church, I would have told you, 'You're crazy,'" Allen said.

But that's exactly what happened, and the result has been greater outreach into the community, more people coming to know Christ and more people growing in their walk with Him.

'God's doing something'

Allen's and Peeler's lives and ministries began to intersect in fall 2015.

Following an extended season of prayer with his congregation and personally, Peeler sensed God raising the possibility of Second Baptist merging with another church. Peeler just didn't know which one.

Meanwhile, Allen had taken a personal retreat to pray and listen to God at Ridgecrest Conference Center near Asheville. Two days later, Allen was praying with his staff when his phone rang. It was Peeler.

Peeler had never met Allen, but told him he believed God wanted to do something in Cleveland County, located in southwest North Carolina between Charlotte and Asheville.

Allen responded that he had been coming to Second Baptist's parking lot to pray for the past two years. Allen also said that he and his staff had just been praying about a possible merger with Second Baptist right before Peeler's phone call.

"In that moment I thought, 'God's answering prayers,'" Allen said. "I've never seen him answer prayers this quick and this obvious, but we knew God's doing something, and we just need to be obedient to it."

Next steps

Peeler went back to his congregation and shared about his conversation with Allen and the possibility of the two churches merging.

"You've been praying all these years, [and] God has answered those prayers," Peeler told the congregation. "But it might not be in the way you have been thinking that prayer was going to be answered."

The two congregations began to pray about next steps and explore the possibility of merging. Both congregations took deliberate, prayerful steps each step of the way.

Each congregation held listening sessions with their respective leaders and members to answer questions and address concerns. Second Baptist and Element held joint worship services together.

Throughout the various meetings, Peeler said one question kept being asked by many of Second Baptist's members: "Can we reach more lost people by doing this?"

"I said, 'I believe very deeply that's why God has done this,'" Peeler said.

'Obedience and sacrifice'

In March 2016, the congregations of Second Baptist and Element Church's Shelby campus officially became Hope Community Church. The new congregation averages approximately 850 in Sunday morning worship, and at the end of 2017, the church had baptized 99 people who had made first-time professions of faith in Christ.

"God always honors obedience and sacrifice," Peeler said.

N.C. Baptist communications survey underway

By CHAD AUSTIN | BSC Communications

All North Carolina Baptists are invited to take a brief survey that is designed to gauge how you receive information and resources from the Baptist State Convention of North Carolina (BSC), as well as provide input and suggestions for content that you would find helpful.

The communications survey should take approximately 10 minutes to complete and is available at ncbaptist.org/survey.

The survey is open through Fri., May 18. All responses are confidential and anonymous.

Each N.C. Baptist church was mailed one printed copy of the survey in late March along with a self-addressed stamped envelope to return the completed survey to the convention.

The survey is open to pastors, directors of missions, church staff, lay leaders and laity. Pastors, church leaders and associational leaders are encouraged to promote the survey in their services, bulletins, newsletters, Sunday School classes, small groups or other avenues. Any N.C. Baptist may take the survey online.

BSC Executive Director-Treasurer Milton A. Hollifield Jr. said the survey will help the state convention better meet the needs of churches while also being good stewards of financial and other resources.

"Your responses will help us not only evaluate our current communications strategies, but also help us to plan for the future," Hollifield said.

"Your feedback will help us determine the best way to communicate with you and what types of content and resources you would find most helpful."

Questions may be directed to a member of the BSC Communications Team by calling (800) 395-5105 or emailing communications@ncbaptist.org. BR

Congress passes online, anti-trafficking bill

Baptist Press

Congress has given overwhelming approval to legislation designed to thwart sex trafficking by holding accountable online sites that facilitate the crime.

The Senate adopted the bill in a 97-2 vote March 21, barely three weeks after the House of Representatives had passed it Feb. 27 in a 388-25 roll call. The bill will go to President Donald Trump, who is expected to sign it. The Allow States and Victims to Fight Online Sex Trafficking Act (FOSTA) would amend a 1996 anti-obscenity federal law to authorize the prosecution of websites that support the sale of people in the sex trade, including clarifying that trafficking victims have the right to bring civil action against such online sites. BR where Rome could not go," Holland said.

They did that because as disciples of Jesus, they believed He truly had all authority and so they went where He said to go and make disciples.

"Go make disciples! That's still His agenda," Holland said, adding that the early churches understood that their mission was not just birthing believers but growing disciples.

But Holland said new churches are not "one kind suits all." He told of his years of experience in starting churches which were set up to reach particular socio-economic groups. Church planters tend to be able to reach people like them, Holland said.

Gray expanded on that concept in his presentation.

"We want to challenge you to reach better the kind of people you are reaching. Those who you are not reaching, that's where we need new churches," he said.

Gray showed pictures of different kinds of vehicles and houses and asked those present to match them to church buildings ranging from megachurch to a small white church building on a rural road.

Different kinds of churches are needed for different kinds of people, Gray said. Upper income people prefer churches with fewer than 100 members; those in lower socioeconomic levels prefer small churches with fewer than 50 in worship.

Another factor that affects outreach is a church's identity – or lack of one – in the community, Gray said.

Once he went into a convenience store and asked the owner if he knew where a certain Baptist church was.

No, the man replied, he had never heard of it.

"You could look out the window and see the church, but he had never heard of it," Gray said, not a positive reflection of the church's witness.

William Ortega said Hispanics are by far the largest ethnic missions challenge in North Carolina. Their 1 million or so number is now about 10 percent of the state's total population. By 2050, he said a full 30 percent of the U.S. population will be Hispanic. Ortega is Hispanic church planting consultant with the convention's Church Planting Team and travels the state to train and coach Hispanic church planters.

Hispanics place a high value on sincere friendship; they work hard and value an opportunity to work; they are loyal and expect loyalty; they come mostly from a Roman Catholic background and tend to be spiritual people, Ortega said.

There are about 190 Baptist churches in the state now, Ortega said, but the goal is to start 135 new Hispanic churches by 2020. Forty of those new Hispanic churches need to be planted in Greater Charlotte. Five of those new churches should be planted in Union County, because more than 10,000 Hispanics live within five miles of downtown Monroe, Ortega said.

"We cannot close our eyes to 10,000 people going to hell," he said.

Ralph Garay described the growing missions challenge of Asians: More than 300,000 Asians now live in North Carolina, which has the third fastest-growing Asian population among U.S. states. Garay leads in planting churches among scores of Asian populations in North Carolina for the convention's Church Planting Team.

Garay and several Asian pastors went out with a group of Union County leaders and visited Asian restaurants and communities. They called for a number of new churches for Asians: an Asian Indian church for the town of Waxhaw, new Korean and Vietnamese churches in Indian Trail, and a Hmong church in Monroe.

Cowboy church planter Jeff Smith, sporting his usual cowboy hat and boots, talked of the need for affinity churches. Smith works with the Baptist state convention and the North American Mission Board. Some people who spend their weekends riding horses "refuse to come to a fancy church with fancy people," Smith said.

Smith has helped start more than 80 cowboy churches across North Carolina, one of the nation's top states in numbers of horses. Union County leads the state in horses and equestrians, Cook said.

Cowboy churches are not just about horses, because 75 percent of the people attend do not even have or ride horses. Rather, Cook said, "It's a simple church; it fits their world."

When study groups returned, several reported seeing horse farms and horses in fields that suggested cowboy churches may be needed.

Mark Navey said his group explored rural areas in Union County but saw multiple horse farms that call for cowboy churches. Navey is youth pastor of Lakeview Baptist Church in Monroe.

As the conference closed, Cook reminded those present that lives are at stake.

"If these proposals stay on those worksheets, nothing will happen," he said.

Cook urged attendees to pray for God's leadership in planning outreach that would start churches and bring the people of Union County to faith in Christ. Cook said the results of this conference "could start something that will last for generations." BR

Fancy Finds presents $10,000 to fund Rampin' Up! grants

Baptist Children's Homes of North Carolina (BCH) will use proceeds from its upscale resale store, Fancy Finds, to help fund $10,000 in matching grant awards for wheelchair ramps built during Rampin' Up! 2018. The grants will be awarded to churches participating in the ramp-raising marathon held in conjunction with Operation Inasmuch on April 28 and May 5. Rampin' Up! is an outreach of North Carolina Baptist Aging Ministry (NCBAM) – one of the many ministries of BCH. Above, Michael C. Blackwell, third from left, president/CEO of BCH, presents check to NCBAM Director Sandy Gregory, right, at the March meeting of NCBAM's advisory team. Keith Henry, second from left, BCH's Chief Operating Officer, and Renee Gregory, left, director of Fancy Finds, joined in the celebration. Proceeds from Fancy Finds benefit all BCH ministries. Since 2012, NCBAM and Baptists on Mission, an auxiliary to the Baptist State Convention of North Carolina, have partnered to build more than 850 wheelchair ramps. While ramp builders generously donate their time and talents, many frail-aging individuals cannot afford the full cost of ramp supplies. The average cost of materials for one ramp is $1,500. NCBAM Rampin' Up! matching grants will be awarded up to 50 percent of the total cost of materials – with a maximum award of $750 per ramp. BCH administers more than a dozen ministry outreaches to people of all ages. From newborns to centenarians, For more information about Rampin' Up!, contact the NCBAM Call Center at (877) 506-2226. Our Righteousness

Focal Passage: Jeremiah 33:3-8; 14-16

In Jeremiah 33, the Lord makes a great many claims: “I will answer you,” and “I will tell you,” “I shall strike down,” “I have hidden my face,” “I will bring it to health and healing,” “I will heal them and reveal to them,” “I will restore,” and “rebuild,” “I will cleanse them,” “I will forgive,” “I will fulfill the promise,” “I will cause a Righteous Branch.”

Finally, Jeremiah declares that Jerusalem will be called, “The Lord is our righteousness.”

I hope the pattern is obvious.

The Lord is the active agent when it comes to righteousness. We are like the people of Israel. We have been given commands and expectations, but we consistently fail.

We are certainly to strive toward righteousness.

No doubt the scripture teaches that God expects holiness. But we must acknowledge that we have no hope of earning the righteousness we desperately need.

When we examine our lives against the expectations of righteousness that God has for us, we can grow depressed and discouraged. Thankfully, the Lord does not leave us wandering in hopelessness. He acts, answers, heals, forgives, fulfills and provides a Righteous Branch.

The Righteous Branch is none other than the Lord Jesus who is the incarnated fulfillment of God’s righteousness for us. Jesus came to do what we could not. He obeyed God’s Law, kept every standard and fulfilled every expectation. He did what we could not do.

Because He is Righteous, He could take our place. He became our substitute, carrying our sin on the cross and transferring His righteousness to us.

Again, I hope the pattern is obvious. Jesus is the active agent with regard to righteousness. We cannot hope to earn God’s approval. But we can receive it.

We should heed the Lord’s command to Jeremiah, “Call to me.” If we will call upon the Lord, we can receive the righteousness without which we cannot know the Lord.

Focal Passage: Esther 2:5-10, 15-17

Sometimes it is easy to have present-day bias. We think that today’s culture is more advanced than previous cultures. Or we think that today’s culture is more evil than previous cultures. Or we think that politics today could not be any worse.

Of course today’s politics are filled with corruption, partisanship and intrigue. Even a cursory glance at any major news network will reveal the perversion and corruption of too many politicians, but our culture and the nature of politics today are not really that unique.

King Ahasuerus of Persia was known for his selfishness, disregard for others and immorality. Perversely dismissive of his first queen, Vashti, the king needed a new queen. The suggestion for finding a new queen pleased King Ahasuerus. Virgins from across the kingdom were brought to the harem, pampered, then sent to spend the night with the king.

CHRIS HEFNER
Pastor,
Wilkesboro Baptist Church

The story of Ahasuerus and Esther is neither a fairy tale, nor a model of biblical morality. But the story of Esther should give us confidence in the Lord.

Behind the immorality and the machinations of king and court, God is accomplishing His purposes. God is working through the integrity of Mordecai. God is working through the humility of Esther.

We must be careful not to judge Esther’s conduct in the same manner we would criticize the king. Esther really had no choice but to present herself at the king’s proclamation, but Esther stood out. She stood out precisely because she acted out of humility. She was not governed by queenly ambition. She knew who she was, a Jew, and knew who God was. As a result she found favor with everyone she met.

That favor is very important to the story as God was poised to use the humble character of the new queen who stood out to keep His promises to His people. The lesson for us – we can stand up and stand out for the Lord because He is sovereignly orchestrating events, even behind acts of immorality and corruption.

Serving God’s People

Focal passage: 1 Corinthians 12:4-12, 21-26

I have mentioned previously that I was a Registered Nurse before I was a pastor. My primary area of work was cardiovascular nursing. We would primarily serve heart patients but would occasionally encounter someone who had suffered a stroke.

As a result of losing blood flow to some part of the brain, the stroke patient would often lose some type of body functionality.

He could have an ocular stroke and lose his vision. Or he might have a more substantial stroke and lose the function of one whole side of his body.

These affected parts are not only unable to carry out their function, but other body parts then have to accommodate that lack of function.

I’ve seen patients have to use their left arm to pick up and move their no longer functioning right arm.

I can’t help applying that background to what Paul teaches in 1 Corinthians 12 regarding spiritual gifts. Paul is clear that God has given every single part of His body gifts to utilize, not for the sake of the individual himself, but for the building up of the body of Christ.

There are several truths we must not miss here. First, God the Holy Spirit is the one who gives gifts to the children of God (we don’t get to determine our own giftings). Second, every body part is important – put in place by Christ and gifted by the Spirit – serving a particular function for the benefit of the body. Third, there is no time to “take a break” from serving Christ. With Christ as our head, we are to give ourselves daily in service to Him for His glory and the building up of His body.

So many in the church today act like those stroke-affected body parts – present but not functional, requiring others to try to work around them or make up the loss. As a result, our churches are struggling to function as Christ intends, with every part functioning and serving with Christ as head.

May we each utilize our spiritual giftings for the glory of Christ and the building up of His church!

Focal passage: 1 Corinthians 13:1-13

We all know that the motivation behind an action is very important.

Think about the daughter who stomps down the hallway, slams her bedroom door and then cleans her room, just to get mom and dad off her back.

Even if you go find the room cleaned neat as a pin, you are hardly consoled knowing the motivation behind the action.

Consider also the husband who “serves” his wife in some way, doing so only for what he hopes to get in return.

There is little consolation for the wife, not because the act of service isn’t appreciated, but because the motive for the act is clearly evident.

When Paul wrote 1 Corinthians 13 – which some believe is a hymn or composition Paul wrote and included in this letter, under the leading of the Holy Spirit – he did so to instruct the Corinthian believers regarding the motive of their heart from which their acts of service to God and one another should flow. Paul didn’t desire only to see right actions but rather to know that those actions were coming from a right heart, one that had been transformed to love like God loves.

The Corinthian believers had demonstrated their ability to act in self-serving ways – for example, by bringing lawsuits against other believers and by acting selfishly even at the Lord’s Supper (1 Corinthians 11).

Paul is exhorting them to let the transforming love of God be the motivation that drives all of their acts of service to God and others.

We will not “naturally” act out of a motivation of love – particularly a love that looks like God’s love for us.

It will have to be supernaturally accomplished – as the Spirit of God does His work first in us and then through us.

In fact, as the Holy Spirit transforms us to act out of love, we see evidence of His other fruit as well – joy, peace, patience, kindness, goodness, faithfulness, gentleness and self-control.

May our love for God motivate us to lovingly serve God and others, all for God’s glory!

Baptist has gone from a church with an average age of 65, to one where the average age is now approximately 40.

From September 2017 to January 2018, the church has baptized 16 people.

Varnam says many church members have caught the vision of reaching and discipling others in the community and surrounding area.

In an effort to be a consistent presence in the community, Varnam said one young man has started a men's Bible study at a local restaurant where men come together weekly to fellowship, read God's Word and pray. A young woman recently began a women's mentoring ministry called "Woman 2 Woman" based on Titus 2.

A senior adult man also started a monthly prayer breakfast where men from different churches and walks of life come together to pray, seek the Lord and encourage one another.

When asked to describe the impact of what's happened at Tar Heel Baptist, one word comes to Varnam's mind – hope.

"The story of Tar Heel Baptist Church is a story of hope," Varnam says, "Hope that God can take a church in a small town that was on the verge of dying and restore it to be a light in the community.

"To God be the glory."

"Tar Heel Baptist wants to make much of Jesus in the community by loving God and loving our neighbors," said Devon Varnam, senior pastor of the church. That includes trying to reach children and families in their community. (Screenshot)

Mars Hill names president

Mars Hill University

The Mars Hill University board of trustees introduced John Anthony "Tony" Floyd, J.D., on March 9 as the next president of Mars Hill University.

Floyd will succeed Dan G. Lunsford, who retires at the end of the academic year.

Floyd currently is executive vice president of Coker College in Hartsville, S.C., where he also serves as coordinator of the political science major and coordinator of the pre-law specialization. He will begin his position at Mars Hill on June 1.

Speaking to a packed house in Broyhill Chapel, Floyd acknowledged the university's commitment to the liberal arts, to its Christian heritage and to offering to students a scholarly faculty from which to learn.

"I can't wait to get here and work with you to turn out these young people, citizens of the world – citizens who can be responsible and be a solution to what our world faces," he said.

Floyd will be only the sixth president of Mars Hill University since 1897. He praised the university community's commitment to upholding its traditions.

"Traditions are powerful at Mars Hill," he said.

TONY FLOYD

"One of the traditions you have is that you don't do this very often, and I'd like for you to keep that tradition.

"This is only the sixth time in 121 years. I recognize the responsibility that comes with that."

And he paid tribute to the strong work of his predecessor, promising to build on Lunsford's 16 years at the helm: "I give you my pledge today that we're going to honor what you've done here and we're going to keep going."

Lunsford promised to be of assistance in any way needed by the new president, but also promised to "stay out of his way," saying he had "absolute confidence" in Floyd to be the next leader of the institution. "He can do the job," Lunsford said, adding a self-deprecating follow-up, "If I could do it, there's no question he can do it."

Floyd was joined by his wife, Terry, and daughters, Olivia and Sarah.

Floyd earned his bachelor of science degree in business management from the University of South Carolina and his juris doctor from Campbell University. Following a 23-year career in private law practice, he joined Coker College in 2012 as vice president of administration and legal counsel and was named executive vice president in 2015. BR

2017 MISSIONS SUPPORT by NC Baptist Churches

We are pleased to present a record of the missions support of the 4300+ churches that make up the Baptist State Convention of North Carolina. We do so with a deep sense of gratitude for the sacrifices made by churches and individuals to cooperatively support the ministries of our missions organizations. While we know all good things come from above, we also recognize that His churches here on earth are the instruments through which His blessings flow. Please understand that we must rely on information reported by our churches in their Annual Church Profile to determine the size of worship attendance. When unavailable, we have attempted to confirm directly with the churches on these lists. The dollar amounts represent actual receipts by the Convention accounting team for the fiscal year Jan. 1-Dec. 31, 2017. These contributions do not include other designated gifts for our affiliated institutions and agencies, auxiliary (Baptists on Mission) or other ministries such as world hunger and disaster relief. Some discrepancies may occur due to timing issues for year-end receipts. Please contact our accounting team if you discover significant discrepancies in the amount reported versus your churches' financial reports. THANK YOU, NORTH CAROLINA BAPTISTS! Together we are impacting lostness in our state, our country and around the world through cooperative missions giving!
